2013 Season Outlook

The Arizona Wildcats enter the 2013 campaign still basking in the glory of their fourth national championship captured last June at the College World Series. Indeed, the masterful undefeated run through the postseason, which included NCAA Regional and Super Regional games in Tucson for the first time since 1992, firmly put the program back amongst the nation's elite. In the process, the Wildcats earned unprecedented support from their fan base as Arizona led the West Coast in attendance with more than 105,000 turning out to Hi Corbett Field a year ago.

Suffice it to say, excitement for Arizona baseball is palpable, optimism is plentiful and expectations are, well, as high as ever. To some, that may add undue pressure to a team that must replace its three-year Friday night ace on the mound and five key contributors from an offensive lineup that led the nation in hits. Not at Arizona.

The expectation in Tucson is always to get to Omaha. It is a place the Wildcats have been 16 times – tied for sixth-most trips by any program – and a destination head coach Andy Lopez is quite familiar with. The 2012 National Coach of the Year has led teams to the College World Series five times and he is one of just three coaches to guide three different schools to college baseball's promised land. With last year's title, he became only the second coach in NCAA history to coach two schools to a national championship.

In short, Lopez knows what it takes to get to Omaha, so do not expect his club to feel any unnecessary pressure. In fact, Lopez often asks his players about the stresses of the game with a simple question: "Is it pressure or pleasure?"

This season, the pleasure is returning the reigning Pac-12 batting champion, Johnny Field, a fierce competitor suited to assume a leadership void with the departure of veterans like Alex Mejia and Robert Refsnyder. Also pleasing to Wildcat fans will be the return of College World Series hero Konner Wade, whose back-to-back complete game victories in Omaha have him poised for a big year as he steps into the Friday night role after Kurt Heyer assumed the job for three seasons. Wade will be joined by fellow junior James Farris, who started the championship-clinching game last June, to provide a steady 1-2 punch in the pitching rotation that will stack up against any team in the conference.

In fact, pitching may prove to be the strong suit of this club, at least early on. Despite losing Heyer, an All-American, every other key contributor from last season's staff returns, and several freshmen have impressed in preseason practices. Pitching depth may be a luxury that the Wildcats lacked a season ago, which may mean the weekend starters will not be asked to log as many innings as they did in 2012, evidenced by 16 complete games.

"I think our biggest strength is having older pitchers," Lopez said. "We have guys back who have been through the realm of college baseball and Pac-12 baseball. Farris, Wade, (Mathew) Troupe, (Tyler) Crawford – they all pitched in Omaha. And then you have four-year guys like (Stephen) Manthei, (Tyler) Hale, (Nick) Cunningham who have pitched a lot in their careers and are throwing well now. That is seven guys right there that have been around for a long time. Even though a couple may have been freshman, there is a lot of experience in those sophomore arms. And I think we have some freshmen ready to contribute, too."

At the same time, Arizona has some questions to answer offensively. The Wildcats are replacing their leadoff man and the No. 3-6 hitters in the batting order. That is no small task. But if there is one thing Lopez's teams have done well in recent seasons, it is to play unselfishly and limit strikeouts. Putting the ball in play and executing situations will be at a premium, notably early in the season as the lineup takes shape.

"Last year's lineup was pretty special," Lopez said. "This year we are going to have some guys in new situations. Instead of certain guys being asked to bunt, they are now going to be asked to deliver base hits after we have put runners in scoring position ahead of them. But we have some talented players and if they stick to our approach – put the ball in play, hit the ball low and hard – then we will be able to put the pressure on the defense."

Ultimately, Lopez has one goal for his club: play good baseball. That was the rally cry for the team in its run through Omaha last season and it will remain the chief focus as long as Lopez is wearing his No. 7 jersey in the Wildcats' dugout. It is a general concept, but it encompasses the key fundamentals of the game ranging from executing situations on offense, throwing strikes on the mound and playing sound defense. The 30-year coaching veteran knows if his team does "play good baseball" throughout the season it will be back in the postseason for the ninth time in 11 seasons with another chance to get to Omaha.

And once you get to Omaha, anything can happen. The Wildcats know that as well as anyone.

Pitching Staff

Replacing All-American Kurt Heyer, the national leader in wins last season, will not be easy. A right-hander, Heyer was a workhorse that earned the Friday night role as a true freshman and was the team's ace for three seasons. Now the Wildcats will hand the ball to junior Konner Wade who, despite an inconsistent first half of his sophomore season, was arguably one of the nation's most dominant pitchers by season's end when he collected a pair of complete game victories and earned a spot on the College World Series All-Tournament Team last June.

Wade finished with an 11-3 record, a 3.96 earned run average, 105 strikeouts and six complete games in 136.1 total innings. By season's end, his early-season control issues were sorted out and he even had a stretch of 31 consecutive innings without a walk allowed during postseason play. This season, he has improved his secondary pitches to complement a nasty sinking fastball that runs down and in and to righties and away from lefties.

Moving into the Saturday spot in the rotation will be right-hander James Farris, a steady Sunday starter a year ago that earned the job for opening weekend and never gave it up. Farris posted a 7-3 record, a .397 earned run average and walked just 20 batters all season in 106.2 innings. He tossed a trio of complete games and had strong performances in each of his two postseason starts, including in the national title game against South Carolina when he allowed just one run in 7.2 innings.

The Sunday slot is not as clear-cut as the first two weekend roles, but veteran Stephen Manthei asked coaches in the fall if he could compete for a starting job. A primary setup-man with a 6-4 record out of the bullpen last season, Manthei is a likely candidate to earn his first career weekend start in the season-opening series.

Whether Manthei takes the Sunday job and runs with it will determine the roles of the other key arms. Sophomore Tyler Crawford had a pair of spot-starts in mid-week games last year, and was the team's top left-handed option out of the bullpen. Seniors Tyler Hale and Nick Cunningham, both right-handers, have pitched well despite inconsistent junior campaigns, as has left-hander Aughey Bill, who pitched in five games last season.

Junior RHP James Farris

A group of talented freshmen are eager to compete for various roles, too. Lefty Cody Moffett and righties Tyger Talley and Nathan Bannister have had strong showings in preseason intrasquads and give the Wildcats added depth.

One more lock in the pitching staff is the role of Mathew Troupe, who enters his sophomore season as the undisputed closer. A year ago, Troupe snatched the closer job early in the season and pitched well, including on the road in a hostile environment at Oregon State where he notched a pair of saves. He struggled in the second half of the regular season, but regained his form in the postseason and earned two victories out of the bullpen at the College World Series.

When Troupe commands his breaking ball, he is as difficult to hit as any reliever in the conference.

In the end, the Wildcats have more pitching depth than they have had in several seasons. There are also more left-handed options which could prove beneficial in late-inning matchup situations. They key for the staff, from the starters to the relievers, will be to command the strike zone and avoid walks. That is something 2012 National Pitching Coach of the Year Shaun Cole and Lopez continue to preach and is something the Wildcats have done very well the last couple of seasons. If Arizona can continue the trend, it will have another strong season on the mound.

Catcher

A freshman All-American in 2012, Riley Moore returns for his second season as a full-time starter. A season ago, Moore hit .301 with 10 doubles, two triples and a home run to go with 40 runs scored and 38 runs batted in as he played in 64 of the team's 65 games, including 62 starts. He spent much of the season as a switch-hitter, but in May hit solely from his more natural left side, which he will continue to do on a permanent basis again as a sophomore.

One thing coaches hope to do this season is give Moore some more rest. He caught 561 of the team's 586 innings pitched a season ago, an arduous task for any player let alone a freshman. The Wildcats like the defensive talents of freshman David Real, a sturdy backstop that could spell Moore when called upon. Another top option is sophomore Jordan Berger, who started a pair of games last season. Berger is a left-handed hitter that could give the Wildcats more offensive punch in the backup catcher role when necessary.

Infield

Simply put, Arizona is not going to replace Pac-12 Player and Defensive Player of the Year Alex Mejia. The leadership and intangibles the All-American brought to the team are irreplaceable. It will also be difficult to fill the void left by Seth Mejias-Brean, an All-Pac-12 third baseman. Mejia and Mejias-Brean formed the best defensive left side of an infield in the nation last year.

However, the Wildcats have some very capable replacements. Freshman Kevin Newman is penciled in as the starting shortstop and looks to follow in the footsteps of Mejia and Bryce Ortega who each started at the position as true freshmen. Junior Brandon Dixon will take over at the hot-corner after playing in 62 games at first base last season. Dixon is an athletic player that has improved his stroke at the plate and is primed for a breakout season.

Sophomore Trent Gilbert returns as the starter at second base after starting 64 games and scoring 34 runs with 42 runs batted in last season. Gilbert will again be backed up by David Lopez, who like Gilbert hits from the left side. At first base, freshman Ryan Koziol and junior college transfer Sam Parris are in a stiff competition and offer the Wildcats left and right-handed hitting options.

Coaches are also excited about the prospects of a pair of freshmen, Cody Ramer and Scott Kingery. Ramer can back up at second or third base, and is a candidate to start in the outfield and potentially hit leadoff in the batting order. Kingery missed some time in January, but was arguably one of the team's top players in the fall. A speedy player, Kingery figures to be the team's backup shortstop behind Newman and also a top contender for a starting spot in the outfield.

Another highly-touted freshman, Jackson Willeford, suffered an arm injury in the preseason which will limit his contributions in the early part of the season. Willeford is a talented offensive player that when healthy could contend for the designated hitter position, as well as backing up at second or third base.

Outfield

Arizona's outfield will also have a different look to it this season. Preseason All-American Johnny Field will slide over from left field to assume the starting center-fielder job. The Pac-12 batting champion who finished with a .370 batting average and a .476 on base percentage, Field likely will move down to the No. 3 spot in the batting order, going from a table-setter in the No. 2 slot to a run-producer.

Who occupies the corner positions to either side of Field remains up for grabs. Joseph Maggi, a natural outfielder who was the club's starting first baseman the second half of last season, will likely claim right or left field. A .326 hitter last season, Maggi is a feisty player that hits from the left side and gives the lineup some flexibility to both where he plays and where he can hit, either near the top or bottom of the batting order.

Sophomore Tyler Parmenter shifts from the infield to the outfield this season, giving the Wildcats a strong throwing arm and a right-handed bat. Freshmen Scott Kingery, Cody Ramer and Zach Gibbons are also talented, athletic freshmen competing for the corner spots. Each adds an element of speed to not only the defense, but also the offensive lineup. Kingery and Ramer are also candidates for backup roles in the infield. The odd men out in the defensive lineup will become prime candidates to start at designated hitter.

Head Coach Andy Lopez

Year in Coaching: 31st
Career Record: 1,090-664-7 (.621)
Year at Arizona: 12th
Record at Arizona: 403-246-1 (.621)
CWS Appearances: 5 (Last in 2012)
National Championships: 2 (2012, Arizona; 1992, Pepperdine)

A three-time national coach of the year, Andy Lopez enters his 12th season as the head coach at The University of Arizona. In his tenure, Lopez has reestablished Arizona as one of the nation's elite baseball programs, guiding the school to the 2012 NCAA National Championship, two College World Series appearances and eight postseason berths in the last 10 seasons.

Lopez's resolute efforts to return the Wildcats to national prominence culminated in a sensational 2012 season. The Pac-12 co-champions, Arizona went a perfect 10-0 in the postseason, winning the Tucson Regional and Tucson Super Regional en route to the school's 16th all-time College World Series, where the team never trailed in five contests and defeated two-time defending national champion South Carolina in the best-of-three championship series.

The title was Arizona's fourth as a program – first since 1986 – and marked Lopez's second career national championship. The Pac-12 Coach of the Year, Lopez also was named national coach of the year by Collegiate Baseball and the American Baseball Coaches Association.

One of 11 active head coaches with a national championship to his credit, Lopez became just the second NCAA Division I head coach to win a title at two schools (Arizona, Pepperdine). He is one of just three coaches to lead three different schools (Pepperdine, Florida and Arizona) to the College World Series. Further, he is one of just four coaches to take two schools to Omaha on multiple occasions (Arizona, Florida).

Arizona won 48 games in 2012, its most victories in a single season since 1986. It was the third time in six seasons that Lopez guided the program to a 40-win season, an annual benchmark the school had not reached since 1989. Lopez has led the Wildcats to 30-win seasons for six straight years.

Lopez has coached the Wildcats to three-consecutive NCAA regional appearances while winning 121 ballgames from 2010-12. His teams placed six members on the All-Conference team in each of the 2011 and 2012 seasons, respectively, with Alex Mejia garnering the Pac-12 Player of the Year and Defensive Player of the Year awards in 2012.

A hallmark of Lopez's clubs have been the balance between hitting and pitching. With a .329 team batting average in 2012, the Wildcats extending their streak of .300 or better seasons to nine-straight years. Meanwhile, the pitching staffs have produced the three highest single season strikeout totals under Lopez. The 2011 and 2012 staffs registered 3.57 and 3.70 ERA's, respectively, the lowest team ERAs at Arizona since 1978.

Lopez has led two of the top four all-time team ERAs by NCAA champions (ERA in CWS games only). At the 2012 College World Series, UA's pitching staff accumulated a team ERA of 1.13 over five games (eight runs in 48 innings). During the 2012 NCAA Tournament, the Wildcats allowed 20 earned runs in 94.0 innings for a 1.91 ERA.

The groundwork for the 2012 championship club was laid in the 2010 season, which was highlighted by reaching two great collegiate milestones. Arizona's season-opening victory over Sacramento State marked the 2,500th all-time win for the program as UA became just the seventh school to reach the mark. Later that year on May 16, Lopez became the 16th active and 46th all-time Division I coach to reach 1,000 career victories as his Wildcat team defeated No. 2 Arizona State, 12-4.

In his 11 seasons at Arizona Lopez has guided the Wildcats to their first College World Series appearance since 1986, the first regional title since 1986, the first-ever super regional title and their first 40-win seasons since 1989. In 2012, Lopez's clubs hosted the NCAA Tucson Regional and NCAA Super Regional at Hi Corbett Field, the program's first time to host postseason games since 1992.

His recruiting classes have consistently been among the top in the nation, highlighted by his second-ranked class by Collegiate Baseball in 1999. His first class at Arizona earned a respectable No. 10 ranking from the publication, which was then followed up with a No. 4 ranking in 2003, a No. 6 ranking in 2004 and a No. 7 ranking in 2005. The 2012 class was rated No. 18 by both Collegiate Baseball and Baseball America.

Player development is an important part of the program under Lopez and his staff. A total of 119 players coached by Lopez have signed professional contracts, including an Arizona record seven that were drafted in the first 12 rounds in 2005 and 11 total players in the 2002 MLB Draft and again in 2008. In 11 years at UA, he has had four players selected in the first round and a total of 53 players picked by Major League teams, including 31 that had never been drafted before. Eleven of Lopez's UA-coached players have played in Major League Baseball.

A total of 37 Lopez-coached players have garnered All-America honors, 82 have been named all-conference and in 1998 he helped guide Brad Wilkerson to national player of the year honors and the Golden Spikes Award. At Arizona, he has coached Alex Mejia (2012) and Trevor Crowe (2005) to conference player of the year honors, and Preston Guilmet (2007) to Pac-10 Pitcher of the Year.

Lopez came to the Old Pueblo from the University of Florida, where he spent seven seasons turning the Gators into a top 25 program and a national championship contender. His .636 winning percentage at UF was third-best for any coach in Florida school history that spent five or more seasons in the top spot.

While in Gainesville, he led the Gators to a 278-159-1 (.636) overall record, two Southeastern Conference championships, five NCAA tournament berths and two College World Series appearances during his seven-year tenure.

He averaged 40 wins a season during his stay in the Swamp, while doubling, from two to four, the UF program's number of trips to the College World Series. The 1996 team, which won a school record 50 games, fell just two wins shy of the national championship title game. The 1996 exploits garnered Lopez Collegiate Baseball National Coach of the Year honors, the second such recognition of his coaching career. While at Florida, his student-athletes also performed in the classroom as well, as his players were tabbed with SEC academic honors 43 times.

He began his collegiate coaching career at Cal State-Dominguez Hills in 1983. He turned the program at CSUDH first into a California Collegiate Athletics Association championship team and then into a Division II national championship contender. His teams won league titles in 1986 and '87, and the latter went on to the Division II College World Series. Three different times he was named the conference coach of the year at Dominguez Hills and his 168-152-2 (.525) record in six seasons caught the eye of Southern California neighbor Pepperdine.

Pepperdine hired Lopez to lead the baseball team in 1989 and he began to make waves in Malibu, Calif., right from the start. Over six seasons he tallied a record of 241-107-3 (.691), his best winning percentage at a school in his career. His first team went 41-19-1 and made the first of four NCAA postseason appearances during his stay. In 1991 the Waves finished the season 41-17-1 and exited postseason play early, but laid a foundation on which the 1992 team could build.

The 1992 season culminated in Pepperdine's first and only national championship in school history. Thought by many to be too small of a school to compete nationally in baseball, Lopez and his team shocked the collegiate baseball world by going 48-11-1, including 8-1 in the postseason. The 3-2 title game victory over Cal-State Fullerton in Omaha earned Lopez consensus National Coach of the Year honors by Collegiate Baseball and Baseball America.

Lopez got into collegiate baseball as a player at Los Angeles Harbor Community College where he played two seasons before transferring to Pac-10 rival UCLA. A 1975 graduate of UCLA, Lopez was the team captain and starting shortstop for the '75 Bruin baseball team. He was drafted in the ninth round by Detroit Tigers in the amateur draft, but opted to complete his studies in Westwood and begin his coaching career instead of turning pro. He was inducted into UCLA's Baseball Hall of Fame in 1994.

Upon completion of his studies at UCLA, he got his first coaching job at his junior college alma mater, L.A. Harbor Community College. He spent two seasons as an assistant coach there before moving on to the high school coaching ranks at Mira Costa High School in Manhattan Beach, Calif. As head coach, he led Mira Costa to a 108-48 (.692) record over five seasons before being hired at CSU Dominguez Hills.

Lopez is involved in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and has twice served as the manager for Athletes in Action. His AIA teams competed internationally in 1982 and '83.

He and his wife, Linda, are the proud parents of two daughters, Kristi and Kerri. They also have two sons, Michael and David, who are both current UA students. Michael played four seasons for the program and will serve as a member of the coaching staff during the 2012-13 season. David enters his fourth year in the program as an infielder.

Shaun Cole 16

Assistant Coach
4th Year at Arizona
William Penn University, 2004

Shaun Cole enters his third season as an assistant coach after spending one year as the Director of Baseball Operations under head coach Andy Lopez. Cole's primary responsibilities are to work with the pitching staff, as well as assist with recruiting, coordinate the team's schedule and travel plans, and help run the Andy Lopez Baseball Academy summer camps.

As an assistant, Cole has done a remarkable job working with the UA pitching staff. In two seasons with the staff, Cole's efforts have produced two All-Pac-10 pitchers, the school's first 10-game winner in five seasons and one All-American.

Since 2009, the staff ERA has improved by nearly two full runs, strikeouts have increased and walks have decreased. The Wildcats' 2011 pitching staff registered a 3.57 team ERA, the lowest mark for a UA staff since 1976. The staff has collected over 400 strikeouts in each of the last two seasons, while the 2011 club issued just 180 walks – the fewest in eight years at the school.

Cole's staff featured one of the best starting duos in the nation in 2011. Sophomore Kurt Heyer and junior Kyle Simon each ranked in the top-10 nationally for innings pitched. Heyer was named a third team All-American by Collegiate Baseball, while Simon became the school's first 10-game winner since 2005. Both were named to the annual All-Pac-10 squad.

Three Wildcat pitchers were selected in the 2011 MLB First-Year Player Draft. Simon was a fourth-round selection of the Baltimore Orioles, while left-hander Bryce Bandilla was chosen in the fourth round by the San Francisco Giants. Left-hander Matt Chaffee, who led the club with seven saves in 2011, was picked in the 12th round by the Atlanta Braves.

In 2010, Cole was instrumental in the development of a young pitching staff that included 13 underclassmen and featured five freshmen in the top eight of the pitching rotation. Despite the youth and inexperience, Cole guided the staff to a strong season by taking nearly a full run off the team's ERA from 2009 to 2010 (from 5.46 to 4.54). Additionally, UA pitching limited opposing hitters to a .277 batting average, a 16-percentage point decline from the previous season. Strikeouts per game also increased, while walks per game decreased.

The development of the 2010 staff was highlighted by Heyer and Simon, who emerged as the Friday and Saturday starters, respectively. As a true freshman, Heyer was named first team All-Pac-10 and was named a Freshman All-American by several publications. Simon settled into the Saturday slot and won a team-high eight games as a starter and was named an honorable mention All-Conference player.

In January 2009, Cole joined the Arizona program to assist in the daily operations of the baseball program while completing coursework from the University of Washington as he earned his Master of Education degree in Intercollegiate Athletic Leadership. For the Wildcats, Cole shadowed Lopez in the development of the pitching staff and served as a liaison between the baseball staff and other UA departments, including academic services, marketing, fundraising, ticket sales and the medical services.

Prior to joining the UA program, Cole held the position of pitching coach and recruiting coordinator at Edmonds Community College in Lynnwood, Washington. At Edmonds, Cole helped coach the program to the 2008 NWAACC Championship title as he assisted with pitching instruction to develop proper mechanics, arm health and conditioning. Additionally, Cole provided coaching, scouting and administrative assistance to first-year head coach Brad Ditter, the NWAACC Coach of the Year.

In 2006, Cole spent six months assisting the General Manager for Baseball Operations with the Seattle Mariners Triple-A affiliate. Cole's focus was with the baseball operations for the Tacoma Rainiers, while also developing relationships with the coaching staff and providing left-handed batting practice. Further, Cole spent time learning from pitching coach Dwight Bernard on coaching, developing and evaluating pitchers.

Cole received his Bachelor of Arts degree in education in 2004 from William Penn University in Oskaloosa, Iowa, where he also earned a baseball scholarship to play for the nationally-ranked Statesmen. Previously, Cole attended Pierce College (Wash.) where he excelled as a left-handed pitcher.

Matt Siegel 18

Assistant Coach
2nd Year at Arizona
Florida, 2000

Matt Siegel is in his second season as a member of the Arizona coaching staff, where he works with the hitters, infielders and serves as the third base coach during games. Siegel also is heavily involved in recruiting and various other key responsibilities within the program.

In 2012, Siegel coached arguably the best hitting lineup in the nation as the Wildcats won a share of the Pac-12 title and captured the national championship. Arizona led all 291 Division I teams with 756 hits on the season and ranked second with 478 runs scored. The Wildcats .329 batting average was fourth nationally and the highest single season average at the school in 12 years.

Under the guidance of Siegel, the Wildcats finished atop most all of the Pac-12 offensive statistical categories. Arizona led all conference teams in batting, slugging, on-base percentage, hits, runs scored, runs batted in, doubles and triples. The Wildcats also led in stolen bases, sacrifice flies and ranked third in both sacrifice bunts and walks. Individually, Johnny Field was crowned as the league's batting champion.

The 2012 Wildcats were lauded for their defensive prowess, a factor that keyed their run to a national title. Shortstop Alex Mejia was named the Pac-12 Defensive Player of the Year and was an integral part of the UA infield that turned 57 double plays on the season, 24th-most in the nation. Over their final 20 games, the Wildcats went 18-2 and boasted an impressive .983 fielding percentage, committing 27 fewer errors than their opponents in that span.

Arizona placed five players on the All-Conference team, including Mejia, who was also named the Pac-12 Player of the Year. Mejia was joined by Field, Bobby Brown, Seth Mejias-Brean and Robert Refsnyder.

Several Wildcats earned All-American recognition by various outlets. Mejia was a near unanimous selection, while Mejias-Brean and Refsnyder each earn honors from various publications. Refsnyder also received the Most Outstanding Player award at the College World Series. Additionally, catcher Riley Moore was named a Baseball American Freshman All-American.

Four of Siegel's players were selected in the first nine rounds of the 2012 Major League Baseball First-Year Player Draft. Mejia was selected in the fourth round by the St. Louis Cardinals, Refsnyder in the fifth round by the New York Yankees, Mejias-Brean in the eighth round by the Cincinnati Reds and Joey Rickard in the ninth round by the Tampa Bay Rays.

Siegel's collegiate coaching career began in 2003 at UNLV, where his responsibilities included coaching the infielders and assisting with the hitters. Under his direction in 2003, the Rebels set a school mark with a .970 fielding percentage.

Siegel went on to spend three seasons as an assistant coach at Texas Christian University. Siegel's duties at TCU included instructing the hitters and working with the offense on base running. He served as the team's third base coach.

The TCU offense showed immediate improvement under the tutelage of Siegel. The 2004 club had a .294 batting average and swiped 63 bases. The Frogs also produced 427 runs in 2004, the most since 1999.

TCU saw even more offensive production in 2005 under Siegel's tutelage. TCU finished the season with a .310 batting average, the highest since the 1997 season. The 454 runs scored were the most since 1996. A year later, the Frogs again bettered their batting average, hitting .311 in 2006.

He has also served as an assistant coach in the Cape Cod Baseball League, where he coached the Cotuit Kettlers in 2002. The next summer, Siegel served as the head coach of the Arlington Senators, a collegiate summer league in Northern Virginia.

Siegel was a four-year starter as an infielder and outfielder at the University of Florida under head coach Andy Lopez. He was a member the 1998 Gator team that qualified for the College World Series. He earned Freshman All-American honors in 1998 and was named Academic All-SEC from 1997-2001. For his career, Siegel boasted a .303 batting average.

Most recently, Siegel spent time working in the commercial real estate market in Dallas-Fort Worth, including his most recent position as Vice President for NAI Robert Lynn.

Siegel graduated from the University of Florida in 2000 with a Finance degree and minor in Economics. He also earned a postbaccalaureate degree in History in 2001.

Siegel now resides in Tucson with his wife, Erin, and their daughters, Molly and Emily.

Josh Garcia 20

Volunteer Assistant Coach
2nd Year at Arizona
University of Arizona, 2012

Josh Garcia enters his second season as a member of the Arizona coaching staff and his first as the volunteer assistant coach. Garcia's primary responsibilities include working with the team's outfielders, hitters, coaching first base, scouting and coordinating the Andy Lopez Baseball Academy camps.

In 2012, Garcia joined the coaching as an undergraduate assistant following two successful seasons as a first baseman and designated hitter. Garcia was a vital part of the coaching staff that helped guide the Wildcats to their fourth national championship and a share of the Pac-12 Conference title.

Garcia served as the team's bench coach during games and he worked closely with UA's corner infielders throughout the season. Along with his in-game duties where he helped manage defensive substitutions and pinch hitters, Garcia also was an integral part of the coaching staff in preparing opposing scouting reports and he fulfilled various other responsibilities on a daily basis.

In his two-year playing career as a Wildcat, Garcia played in 65 games and made 47 starts. He hit .259 with 11 home runs, 31 runs scored and 43 runs batted in. As a senior in 2011, Garcia belted a team-leading eight homers and was a clutch option off the bench when used a pinch-hitter, as he went 6-for-8 in the season.

Prior to his enrollment at Arizona, Garcia starred at South Mountain Community College in Phoenix, Ariz., during the 2008-09 seasons. He was named to the All-ACCAC team as a sophomore after hitting .360 with five home runs and 13 doubles. He was also named All-Region and All-Conference as a freshman.

Garcia was in the 46th Round of the 2007 MLB First-Year Player Draft by the Arizona Diamondbacks with the 1,354th overall pick following a successful career at Brophy College Preparatory in Phoenix, Ariz. As a senior in 2007, Garcia hit 13 home runs and was named to the Arizona Republic's 5A All-State team. He was also recognized on the Rawlings and Louisville Slugger All-American teams.

Garcia earned his degree in religious studies with a minor in sociology from the University of Arizona in 2012.

Michael Lopez 45

Undergraduate Assistant Coach
1st Year on Coaching Staff
Arizona player: 2009-12

Michael Lopez is in his first season on the Arizona coaching staff following a four-year career as a pitcher for the Wildcats. As the team's undergraduate assistant coach, Lopez works closely with both pitchers and hitters during practices, prepares scouting reports on opponents and assists the coaching staff in a variety of other roles on a daily basis. During games, Lopez will compile situational hitting charts and will work in the bullpen with pitchers.

In his four seasons as a player, Lopez was one of the team's most tireless workers and set example for his teammates both on and off the field. He pitched in one game during each of the 2010, 2011 and 2012 seasons respectively, allowing just one hit and no runs over 3.1 combined innings in his career.

Lopez, who graduated from Sabino High School in 2008, will graduate from The University of Arizona in May 2013 with a degree in family studies. Lopez is the son of Andy and Linda Lopez. Michael has three siblings, including David, an infielder on the team, and sisters Kristi and Kerri, both graduates of Arizona.

Arizona 2012: Started 64 of the team's 65 games at second base ... Finished season with a .272 batting average, 34 runs scored and 42 runs batted in ... Set a UA freshman record and tied for third overall in program history with 12 sacrifice bunts on season ... Collected 13 multi-RBI games on season to go with 17 multi-hit games ... Had a season-high eight-game hitting streak from April 5-20 and reached base safely in 14-straight games from Feb. 21-March 14 ... Strong end to season with a .303 average, seven runs scored and nine runs batted in over course of 10 postseason games ... Did not commit an error and registered 16 assists in five games at the College World Series (6/15-25) ... Went 2-for-4 and drove in three of team's four runs in second championship game against South Carolina to win national championship (6/25). Run-scoring groundout put UA on top in third inning, before two-out, two-run single in top of ninth provided key insurance runs. Also snared a line drive up the middle with the bases loaded in bottom of the ninth to preserve 4-1 win ... Scored a run and had a sacrifice in first championship game against Gamecocks (6/24) ... Went 1-for-5 with a pair of RBI against Florida State to advance to championship series (6/21) ... Hitless in two official at-bats but had a sacrifice in win over UCLA (6/17) ... Drew a walk and had a sacrifice against Florida State in opening game of College World Series (6/15) ... Drew three walks in Tucson Super Regional championship victory over St. John's (6/9) ... Went 2-for-4 with two runs scored and two key RBI to highlight UA comeback over St. John's in Tucson Super Regional opener (6/8). Run-scoring triple in bottom of sixth helped UA overcome five-run deficit. Later delivered walk-off single in bottom of 10th inning ... Went 5-for-10 with four runs scored and a pair of RBI in Tucson Regional sweep of Missouri (6/1) and Louisville (6/2-3) ... Collected four hits, one run and a pair of RBI in three game series victory over Arizona State to close regular season (5/25-27) ... Had two hits, a run scored and an RBI in three-game set at USC (5/18-20) ... Went 1-for-5 with a pair of RBI in victory at Arizona State (5/16) ... Reached base eight times (four walks, two hits and two HBP), scored two runs and stole two bases over three games at California (5/11-13) ... Batted 3-for-11 with a run scored and two RBI in three games against Oregon (5/4-6) ... Went 3-for-9 with a run and two RBI in two starts against East Tennessee State (4/27-28). Missed only start of season in third game (4/29) ... Collected three hits in 14 at bats with two runs scored and an RBI in three games at Washington (4/20-22) ... Went 2-for-4 with a run and an RBI at Arizona State (4/17) ... Picked up a hit in each of three games against UCLA with one run scored and a pair of RBI (4/13-15) ... Batted 4-for-12 with two runs scored and a pair of RBI in three games at Utah (4/5-7) ... Hitless in three at bats but did have a sacrifice at Utah Valley (4/4) ... Went 1-for-3 in each of three games to go with a run scored and two RBI in sweep of then-No. 2 Stanford (3/30-4/1) ... Combined 2-for-10 in series at Oregon State (3/23-25), but had a pair of hits, including a double, a walk and an RBI in second game victory ... Went 1-for-6 with a run scored over two mid-week games against New Mexico State (3/20-21) ... Batted 2-for-11 with a double, a run scored and two RBI in three games against Washington State (3/16-17) ... Tallied a base hit in each of two games at Rice (3/13-14), and had a run and RBI in second game ... Batted 4-for-12 in three-game sweep of Eastern Michigan (3/9-11), highlighted by first career three hit game that included a double and four runs scored in second game ... Had three hits and four RBI in two mid-week games against UC Davis (3/6-7) ... Combined to hit 5-for-11, including first career triples, with two runs and five RBI over three-game sweep of Harvard (3/2-4) ... Batted 2-for-11 with three runs scored and a pair of RBI in three games against Auburn (2/24-25) ... Went 2-for-6 with a run scored in mid-week tilt against Utah Valley (2/21) ... Opened season with three starts at second base against North Dakota State (2/17-19) and registered first career base hit in second game.

Hi Corbett Field

Beginning in 2012, Hi Corbett Field became the new home of Arizona baseball. Located approximately two miles southeast of the University of Arizona campus, Hi Corbett Field is the former Spring Training home of the Colorado Rockies and offers Major League-caliber amenities to the UA baseball program.

The historic ballpark has a capacity of 9,500 and includes spacious concourses, hundreds of box seats, and large grandstands behind home plate and down each base line complete with chair-back seating to create one of the best gameday environments for fans in the nation. Down each foul line are additional oversized grandstands with bleacher seats, and down the right field foul line is a large grass lawn with shade trees.

The stadium has an abundance of amenities for visitors, including large concessions stands and restrooms. The venue is handicapped accessible and includes nearly 1,000 parking spaces in the surrounding areas. The press box features an elevator, a large media workroom, home and visiting radio booths and operations rooms. A roof extends from atop the press box and provides shade on sunny days to the seats behind home plate.

The Arizona baseball offices are located on-site in an executive suites building down the right field line. The complex includes five offices, a conference room, restrooms and an academic study area.

For players, a newly renovated and oversized home clubhouse is attached to the home dugout along the first base line. Inside is a large locker room area with individual wooden lockers for each player, showers and restrooms, a rehabilitation center, a training room, coaches gameday locker room, televisions, new furniture, a video room for film study and an equipment room. Cosmetic upgrades to flooring, painting and UA branding were completed in January 2012.

Behind the right field fence is a lighted and covered batting cage facility. The batting cage features four tunnels and pitching mounds to provide hitters and pitchers a place to workout any day of the year. A professionally-maintained auxiliary field beyond the right field fence is also available for the team to use for practice and training at any time.

Hi Corbett Field sits in the heart of mid-town Tucson and is nestled inside Gene C. Reid Park. Over the left field fence is the Reid Park Zoo and to the east behind the third-base grandstands are the greens to the second hole at Randolph North Golf Course and the fourth hole at Dell Ulrich Golf Course – yes, two 18-hole municipal courses. Surrounding views include the Santa Catalina Mountains to the north, the Rincon Mountains to the east, the Santa Rita Mountains to the south and the Tucson Mountains to the west.

Tucson's most centrally-located park, walking and biking paths, a lake, picnic areas and ball fields complete the spacious confines of Reid Park. Other nearby attractions includes Randolph Recreation Center, the El Con Mall, shopping centers, and dining establishments.

Hi Corbett Field was built in 1927 and originally named Randolph Municipal Baseball Park. The initial home teams in the early years included the Tucson Waddies and the Tucson Cowboys of the Arizona State League. In 1931, the Tucson Missions played in the Arizona-Texas League and the Tucson Lizards were the name in 1932. From 1933-1958 the Tucson Cowboys occupied the ballpark.

In 1946, the Cleveland Indians moved their spring training operations to Tucson. Hiram Steven Corbett, a long-time Arizona state senator and president of the Tucson Baseball Commission, played a key role in luring the Indians. Corbett worked with Bill Veeck, then owner of the Indians, to make the deal happen.

In the Cactus League's inaugural opener on March 8, 1946, Bob Lemon got the win as the Indians defeated the Giants 3-1. In 1951, the City of Tucson renamed the ballpark in honor of Corbett and it has since been known simply as Hi Corbett Field.

For 46 years, it was the home of Indians for spring training. In 1992, the Indians announced they were moving their spring training location to Florida. The Colorado Rockies, a new expansion franchise, immediately moved into the facility in the spring of 1993. The club remained through 2010.

The ballpark was the home of the Tucson Toros, a Class-AAA affiliate, from 1969-1997. But when the Arizona Diamondbacks and Chicago White Sox opened the Kino Sports Complex as a spring training site, the Tucson Toros permanently moved to the new park and became known as the Tucson Sidewinders. Thereafter, USA baseball, the Arizona Heat of National Pro Fastpitch and the Golden Baseball League's Tucson Toros have been headquartered at Hi Corbett.

On Aug. 10, 2011, the University of Arizona Department of Intercollegiate Athletics announced that the baseball program was moving its plant permanently to Hi Corbett Field. The move became official months later when a lease agreement was signed by the school and the City of Tucson.

The school has a long and storied history of playing games at Hi Corbett Field, though most games date back to the 1940's, 50's, 60's and early 70's. The Wildcats often played double-headers where the afternoon contest was played on campus at UA Field (now current location of main library) and the nightcap was hosted under the lights at Hi Corbett Field. Arizona's rivalry games with Arizona State were also frequently played off-campus in the evenings, as were the NCAA District Playoffs.

The first-ever collegiate night game played in Tucson was on April 26, 1940 when Arizona hosted New Mexico. The Wildcats won, 8-0, but the night was highlighted by hurler Ken Heist who struck out 21 batsmen in his final collegiate game. At the time it was believed to be a school record and remains the top mark in program history to this day.

In 1967, the Arizona baseball program proudly opened Wildcat Field and added lights to the facility during the 1975 season. With a lighted ballpark on campus, the need to play games at Hi Corbett faded away. The on-campus venue was renamed Frank Sancet Stadium in 1986 and later to Jerry Kindall Field at Frank Sancet Stadium in 2003. The ballpark hosted 1,604 games from 1967-2011, with the Wildcats winning 1,114 games against 486 losses and four ties.

Hi Corbett Field Fast Facts:

Built: 1927

Capacity: 9,500

Surface: Natural Grass

Recent Renovations: 1972, 1992, 1997, 1999, 2012 and 2013

- Arizona occupies the first base dugout/clubhouse. Visiting teams occupy the third base dugout with an attached clubhouse.
- The batting cage facility is located behind the right field fence. The auxiliary training fields are located just beyond the batting cages. UA utilizes one of the fields for some practices.
- The executive suites building down the right field line hosts the Arizona baseball coaches offices, a conference room and an academic services center.
- The Arizona clubhouse behind the first base dugout houses an oversized locker room, coaches locker rooms, a video room, an equipment room, washers and dryers, a rehabilitation room and a training room.
- The red line on the outfield wall separates the lower padded wall and the taller metal wall extending higher. A home run is awarded for any ball that goes over the red stripe.
- The height of the left field padded wall is approximately eight-feet tall from the left field line across to left-center. From the 388-mark, the padded wall elevates to approximately nine-feet tall and raises to over 10-feet high in right-center at the 360-mark, where it remains near that height to the right field foul line.
- The names on the outfield wall honor former deceased student-athletes John "Button" Salmon, Lee Franklin and Kelsey Osbourne. The 1980 Golden Spikes Award winner and two-time world champion manager Terry Francona is also recognized. Inside the front entrance to the venue is a bronze plaque recognizing the accomplishment of former coaches Frank Sancet and Jerry Kindall. The Legends Plaza in the lower concourses recognizes former All-Americans, along with coaches Kindall and Jim Wing, the architects of the school's first three national championships.
- Parts of the 1989 movie Major League were filmed at Hi Corbett Field. The production used members of the University of Arizona baseball team as extras.

Home at Hi Corbett Field

UA's permanent move to Hi Corbett Field has been in the works for more than 70 years.

Story first written prior to the 2012 season.

It is said that the more things change, the more they remain the same. Those words especially hold true for historic Hi Corbett Field and the Arizona Wildcats.

On Aug. 10, 2011, the University of Arizona Department of Intercollegiate Athletics announced that the baseball program was moving its plant permanently to Hi Corbett Field. The move became official months later when a lease agreement was signed by the school and the City of Tucson.

The decision was met with mixed emotions from fans, alumni and baseball letterwinners. After all, the school had won three national championships by playing on campus at Wildcat Field, later named Frank Sancet Stadium and eventually Jerry Kindall Field at Frank Sancet Stadium in honor of the legendary coaches.

The change was motivated by a number of factors. At the forefront was improving the facilities in place for current and future ballplayers to aide in player development. Other strong consideration was given to improving the overall fan experience, providing a stadium with more shade, better seating and increased space for concessions, restrooms and parking. All of these factors also played into increasing chances to host postseason games, something the school has not done in nearly 20 years.

Those opposed to the move had strong emotional connections to the old ballpark, and for good reason. Decades of traditions for players, fans and alumni are not easy to look past. The baseball program, one of those most storied in NCAA history, had defined itself by playing in front big crowds on sunny spring days and pleasant evenings on campus in the months before the seemingly annual trip to the College World Series.

But in recent seasons, something had changed. The once large crowds dwindled and students found other things to do on Friday nights and weekday afternoons. While the winning tradition continued into the 2000s under coach Andy Lopez, postseason appearances have been made in far-away locations such as Coral Gables, Fla., Ann Arbor, Mich., South Bend, Ind., and a handful of cities in Texas. The closest stop since 1992 has been Fullerton, Calif.

Arizona had a couple of options to consider. One such solution would be to begin an expensive renovation of the on-campus facility. The second was to explore the possibility of moving into an off-campus facility at Hi Corbett Field, which already had Major League-caliber facilities in place.

Hi Corbett Field became a viable option after the Colorado Rockies moved out of the facility officially at the end of spring training in 2010. The Tucson Toros, an independent league baseball team, played at the park that summer, but was then put on hiatus when the Tucson Padres, the Class-AAA club for the San Diego Padres, opened play at Kino Sports Complex in 2011.

Director of Athletics Greg Byrne and city officials saw Hi Corbett Field as a solution to improve the Wildcats' facilities as well as provide a permanent tenant for the mostly unused venue. Discussions between the two parties began last summer and by the fall an agreement was in place.

It was a perfect match for Tucson and the Arizona Wildcats. And as history tells us, it was something in the works for more than 70 years proving that while a whole lot has changed, much will stay the same in this baseball town.

A Local Attraction

The legacy of Hi Corbett Field is not defined by single games or seasons, players or managers, decades or eras. Instead, what makes Hi Corbett Field special is that it appeals to an entire community.

Hi Corbett Field sits in the heart of mid-town Tucson and is nestled inside Gene C. Reid Park. Over the left field fence is the Reid Park Zoo and to the east behind the third-base grandstands are the greens to the second hole at Randolph North Golf Course and the fourth hole at Dell Ulrich Golf Course – yes, two 18-hole municipal courses.

Tucson's most centrally-located park, walking and biking paths, a lake, picnic areas and ball fields complete the spacious confines of Reid Park. Other nearby attractions includes Randolph Recreation Center, the El Con Mall, shopping centers, and dining establishments.

It was not always that way, though. Before the park and the zoo, the field provided a desert oasis for baseball. Lush desert vegetation created a natural border between the field and the surrounding neighborhoods. The only hustle and bustle in those days came from the crack of the bats and the cheers from the crowd at the diamond.

Hi Corbett Field was built in 1927 and originally named Randolph Municipal Baseball Park. The initial home teams in the early years included the Tucson Waddies and the Tucson Cowboys of the Arizona State League. In 1931, the Tucson Missions played in the Arizona-Texas League and the Tucson Lizards were the name in 1932. From 1933-1958 the Tucson Cowboys occupied the ballpark.

But the big news for the stadium came in 1946 when the Cleveland Indians moved their spring training operations to Tucson. Hiram Steven Corbett, a long-time Arizona state senator and president of the Tucson Baseball Commission, played a key role in luring the Indians. Corbett worked with Bill Veeck, then owner of the Indians, to make the deal happen.

"If Horace Stoneham will bring the New York Giants to Phoenix to train, I will bring the Cleveland Indians to Tucson," Veeck is quoted as saying on the Cactus League official website.

In the Cactus League's inaugural opener on March 8, 1946, Bob Lemon got the win as the Indians defeated the Giants 3-1. In 1951, the city of Tucson renamed the ballpark in honor of Corbett and it has since been known simply as Hi Corbett Field.

For 46 years, it was the home of Indians for spring training. In 1992, the Indians announced they were moving their spring training location to Florida. The Colorado Rockies, a new expansion franchise, immediately moved into the facility in the spring of 1993. The club remained there through 2010.

The ballpark was the home of the Tucson Toros, a Class-AAA affiliate, from 1969-1997. But when the Arizona Diamondbacks and Chicago White Sox opened the Kino Sports Complex as a spring training site, the Tucson Toros permanently moved to the new park and became known as the Tucson Sidewinders. Thereafter, USA baseball, the Arizona Heat of National Pro Fastpitch and the Golden Baseball League's Tucson Toros have been headquartered at Hi Corbett.

The last year and a half has seen the historic ballpark go mostly unused in an eclectic part of a town that once rallied around the teams that called Tucson home, even if just for a month or two during the year. Still, the history and legacies of the old ballpark remain and await new chapters to be written in the years to come.

Under the Lights

The Chicago Cubs scheduled their first night game at Wrigley Field for Aug. 8, 1988. That game with the Philadelphia Phillies was rained out after three and a half innings and the Cubs played their first official night game the next day against the New York Mets, a 6-4 Cubs' victory.

Flashback – yes back in time – 48 years to the first collegiate night game ever played in Tucson. On April 26, 1940, the Arizona Wildcats hosted the New Mexico Lobos at Randolph Park – now Hi Corbett Field – for the final series of the season that was to determine the winner of the Border Conference championship.

The Tucson Daily Citizen wrote in its April 26 issue that “the game will start at 8 o'clock and a large crowd is expected.” The crowd – estimated a day later at 500 by the Arizona Daily Star – witnessed a game for the ages.

Not only was it the school's first night game, but hurler Ken Heist, throwing in his final collegiate game, struck out 21 batsmen. At the time it was believed to be a school record and remains the top mark in program history to this day.

“Burning ‘em over with rocket-like velocity, Kenny mowed the Lobos down in almost mechanical manner,” wrote the Arizona Daily Star a day later. Heist had yielded just two base hits all night long until the ninth inning before giving up a pair of singles, “but Heist turned on the steam and sent the next three men down swinging.”

Heist's remarkable performance has been documented sporadically throughout Arizona baseball annals. However, it has never been consistently documented as the top mark for whatever reasons. Even when referenced in some old media guides, the year has been listed as 1941, and the Arizona Daily Star once referred to the record as occurring in 1942.

Without Heist's mark, past archives have listed two players sharing the school record. In 1962, Dan Schneider struck out 20 against Utah and Leon Hooten matched that tally against New Mexico in 1969.

Alas, Heist's 21 will prove to be the record going forward.

Let's Play Two

One of the Arizona baseball traditions from decades past was to play day-night double-headers. The first game was often scheduled for early afternoon on campus at UA Field and the nightcap slated for a 7 o'clock or later first pitch just a few miles down the road at Hi Corbett Field.

On April 11, 1959, the Wildcats hosted upstart Arizona State in a highly anticipated series. The Sun Devils, in their first year under coach Bobby Winkles, were a program on the rise and posed a potential challenge to a UA program bidding for a 10th-straight trip to the NCAA district playoffs.

The Arizona Daily Star previewed the series by writing, “the clubs tangle at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the UA field and conclude the twin-bill with a game under the lights tonight at Hi Corbett Field, beginning at 7:30.”

Arizona won both games by scores of 10-1 and 6-3, respectively. Catcher Alan Hall blasted a home run in each game, one at UA Field and another over at Hi Corbett Field. His battery-mate for the nightcap was ace hurler Dave Baldwin.

Perhaps the big moment came on Hall's homer in the fifth inning, and Casey described the play as such: “Last night under the lights at Hi Corbett Field before a crowd of 1,226, Alan Hall's leadoff home run in the fifth inning capped a four-run Wildcat uprising that brought them from behind to take the win.”

The following week the Wildcats played host to the Sull Ross Lobos, a small institution in Alpine, Texas, with an enrollment of 2,000 and known as much for its rodeo as any of its athletic programs.

Arizona defeated the Lobos 4-1 in a whirlwind game that lasted just one hour and 37 minutes on a Friday afternoon at UA Field. Birdie Morago hurled a two-hit masterpiece and faced only 29 official batters, retiring the final 18 in order.

The next day the two teams were set for a twin-bill. The Wildcats captured an easy 11-5 victory at UA Field in the afternoon, highlighted by an ejection of the Lobos starting catcher. Casey noted the incident and wrote that “George Martin was thumbed out of the afternoon game by umpire Bill Long after protesting too vigorously on a call while Arizona was batting in the fifth inning. Martin became so angry he tossed the baseball he was holding over the fence and into the street.”

The nightcap was at Hi Corbett Field and featured an interesting pitching duel. Arizona's Jim Ward squared off against a former Wildcat, Herman Hudson, who “shackled the Cats for four innings” as Casey mentioned in his game story. But the Wildcats' bats awoke in the middle stages, tying the game and eventually taking a 3-1 lead in the sixth inning en route to a 6-1 win to capture the series sweep.

One week later, on April 25, the UA was again up to it's usual double-dip winning ways. After Morago hurled a four-hit shutout in a 13-0 victory over Air Force at UA Field in the afternoon, Baldwin took to the mound and fanned 18 Falcons in a 23-2 rout at Hi Corbett Field in the evening. Casey called Baldwin “a fire-balling strikeout artist” in the next day's paper.

College Baseball's Spring Training

Arizona's dry and warm climate affords the opportunity to play baseball year round in the Old Pueblo. The chamber-of-commerce spring afternoons are no exception, but are sometimes easy to take for granted – unless you're from the colder climates.

Indeed, teams from the Midwest migrated annually to Tucson to enjoy outdoor baseball in the sunny southwest. Michigan and Iowa were two regular visitors to Tucson, often traveling out west to play as many as eight games against the Wildcats.

The Hawkeyes first traveled to Tucson for a six-game series in 1952. Despite winning just one game, they returned for the next 10 seasons. A few years later, the annual vacation resumed and from 1964-1974 they played at least two games in Tucson every year.

It was customary for the Wildcats and Hawkeyes to play single games on four-straight days and then take a day off before playing a double-header on a Saturday to wrap up the series. Often times the double-header was capped at night at Hi Corbett Field.

The same held true with the Wolverines from Michigan. UM first came to Tucson in 1960, and were regulars in the 1960s and early 70s. In 1963, the Wildcats and Wolverines tussled for six games, playing three at Hi Corbett Field. It was a familiar slate between the schools in most seasons.

While Oklahoma, Southern Illinois and others traveled to play in Tucson, some years felt like the Wildcats belonged in the Big 10 Conference. The Wildcats played six games with Iowa, two with Michigan and four with Wisconsin, including two at Hi Corbett, in 1965. A year later, Ohio State was on the slate four times and again for two contests in 1969.

In 1972, the Wildcats played the Wolverines eight-straight games and then turned around to play Iowa eight times. A tilt with Tulsa was mixed in, but otherwise 16 of 17 home games were played against the two Big 10 schools.

The week-long visits by the Big 10 schools were like mini-spring trainings for teams that sometimes were playing outdoors for the first time when they arrived. Usually the lack of outdoor practice proved burdensome to the visitors. For instance, Iowa collecting a mere 19 wins in 118 chances against the Wildcats from 1952-74. Even so, sometimes luck fell on the side of the visitors and that was certainly the case in 1959.

In the opening game of a six-game series, the Hawkeyes mounted an improbable rally to tie the Wildcats 6-6. The Tucson Daily Citizen's Carl Porter noted in an article dated March 24, 1959, that "the odd part of yesterday's series lidlifter was the fact it was perhaps Iowa's lack of outdoor workouts that came through for the visitors in the 11th hour."

Arizona was leading 6-4 in the ninth inning with top arm Dave Baldwin on mound. Porter described Baldwin "hot as an August afternoon at the time, striking out the first two men in the ninth for his 11th and 12th whiffs of the game."

To make matters worse for Iowa, late afternoon "shadows engulfed UA Field except for a few rosy streaks of setting sun" and Baldwin's "flashing fastball looked as pale as the misty moon in left field."

"We haven't been out of our field house for six weeks," a Hawkeye player told Porter before the game. "And man, is the light bad for hitting in there."

But the Hawkeyes, used to hitting in poor lighting, mounted a two-out rally to tie the game at 6-6. Playing at UA Field, the game had to be called after 10 innings and three hours and 31 minutes of action, illustrating why so many games had to be played at Hi Corbett Field in those days. Arizona won the series 3-2-1 that year in what was one of the most closely contested series with the Hawkeyes over the years.

The days of the extended visits has long since passed, however. Michigan has returned to play in Tucson as recently as 2009 (a three-game UA sweep), but otherwise Iowa (1974), Wisconsin (1972) and Ohio State (1969) have not been back since the old UA Field/Hi Corbett years and the collegiate version of spring training.

Friend Turns Foe

The Cleveland Indians played a big part in Tucson's baseball history during the middle half of the 20th Century. After all, Tucson was the Indians' home for spring training since 1946, which helped cultivate a supportive baseball culture in town.

But in the late 1950s, Arizona coach Frank Sancet found the business operations of the Indians to be bothersome. In early March of 1959, one of Sancet's top players, third baseman Gene Leek, abruptly signed a professional contract with the Indians. The Tucson Daily Citizen's George McLeod wrote that the contract was estimated at nearly $50,000 over the next four years.

EXPENSIVE INK . . .
Gene Leek, an University of Arizona slugger, signs a professional contract with the Cleveland Indians as Tribe scout Darin Lodigiani (left) and Manager Joe Gordon look on. The smiling trio are sporting below sea equipment with a little bit of an proved to the Indians, with Leek signing for "payments of $10,000." Leek was to make his professional debut this morning with the Cleveland "W" team against the Chicago Cubs 'B' team in Mesa.

Sancet was left disgruntled at the signing. According to the Tucson Daily Citizen, Sancet banned his players from working out with the Indians and announced that he would do all possible to keep his players from signing with Cleveland.

Sancet told the newspaper, "I'm angry over one thing . . . that Leek was signed during the season. This is the first time in the history of the school it has happened. Lots of kids, in fact, just about all of them, have signed with remaining eligibility. But I don't get mad at that. They sign between seasons when we still had time to make our plans."

Within hours of signing, Leek collected a pair of hits and assisted in a rally-killing double play for the Indians A team that defeated the Chicago Cubs A team, 10-5, in Mesa. Two days later, Leek and the Indians A team were scheduled to return to Tucson and play the Boston Red Sox at Hi Corbett Field.

Leek teamed with former Wildcat Carl Thomas as local sensations during spring training that year. Lou Pavlovich wrote in the Tucson Daily Citizen that Leek was the "most exciting bit of news to hit a Cleveland spring camp since the days when Herb Score was discovered. This University of Arizona performer got a running mate in the 'surprise' department yesterday when big Carl Thomas, also an ex-Wildcat, hurled three spectacular innings to help Cleveland bounce the Boston Red Sox, 7-5, with 5,106 fans – about 1,000 less than the record turnout at Hi Corbett Field – watching."

The situation is not so different from what college coaches face today battling the professional ranks. With the Major League Baseball First-Year Player draft annually held in June – at the same time of the NCAA postseason – draft-eligible players are often selected by organizations before their college seasons are over. Sometimes, as was the case in 2011 for a handful of Wildcats playing in the College Station Regional Championship game, players are drafted without their knowing during the course of a game.

None, however, traded their jerseys in quite as quickly as Leek did some 50-plus years ago.

Fighting for the Playoffs

In the 1950s, Arizona was fighting with perennial Texas powers for the right to host the District 6 Playoffs. The stadiums and crowds were, as the saying goes, bigger in Texas.

That began to change, however, when the Wildcats started playing postseason games at Hi Corbett Field. Arizona was actually awarded postseason tournaments in 1951 and 1953. The Wildcats were beaten by Texas A&M and Texas, respectively, in each of those seasons.

Arizona caught a bit of break in 1954 when it participated in the 1954 District 7 Playoffs at Northern Colorado and at Wyoming instead of playing the Texas schools from District 6. The Wildcats broke through for their first trip to the College World Series that season, and again did so after playing on the road at Texas A&M in the 1955 District 6 Playoffs.

By then Arizona had established itself as a premier program. One of the missing ingredients was the big home crowds, and those started to turn up in the 1956 season. To boot, the Wildcats had arguably the best starting pitching staff in school history with aces Carl Thomas and Don Lee, and Ernest Oosterveen was an outstanding No. 3 starter who once suffered a loss that year despite pitching into the 15th inning of a contest.

One of the highlights of that 1956 season came in mid-April in a night game at Hi Corbett Field. In front of a crowd of 1,200, ace hurler Lee earned a win of his own with a three-run blast in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the Wildcats a prevailing 5-2 victory over San Diego State. His pitching and hitting heroics extended the school's winning streak to 24 straight games, and eventually a then-school record 25.

Bud Tucker of the Tucson Daily Citizen said the large and boisterous crowd "serves to indicate Tucson will support college baseball – if the games are staged at working men's hours." Tucker added in his column that UA graduate manager Bumps Tribolet was "elated over the large turnout." Indeed, night games were a hit in the town.

Hosting playoff games required at least that much support and financial considerations were an issue then as they are today.

As Abe Chanin cited in the Arizona Daily Star on May 10, 1956, "Last year, the NCAA district six playoffs in little Bryan, Texas, drew almost 18,000 for three games between Arizona and Texas A&M." Chanin added, "It will cost some $2,500 to bring the TCU baseball team here and that calls for hefty attendance to make the 'nut', as they say in the entertainment business."

By season's end, Arizona was hosting the playoffs and fans came out in droves to support their club. It was a highly anticipated series against the Horned Frogs that forced UA officials to bring in extra bleacher seating as sellouts were expected.

Those that packed the stands for the series opener on May 21 were treated to a classic contest. As Tucker described, "With two out in the bottom of the ninth inning and Cat centerfielder Lee Myers on second base, [Craig] Sorensen jumped on the three-and-two offering of Frog pitcher Doug Balkum and parked it over the 360-foot left field wall to break a 5-5 tie and send 4,635 fans – the largest throng ever to watch a UA baseball game – into near hysteria."

Arizona won the series in two games and went on to a third-straight College World Series appearance. The next two times the Wildcats hosted the District 6 Playoffs – in 1958 and 1960 – they also clinched appearances in the College World Series.

Some Unusual Foes

Arizona baseball schedules in the 1950's featured some unusual opponents. Williams Air Force Base, the San Diego Marines, Camp Pendleton, Oakland Acorns and Darr Aero Tech are just a few of the many opponents that show up in the year-by-year schedules.

One of the more memorable series was held in Tucson in May of 1950. Arizona, which had suffered just two losses all season long, hosted a three-game set against the National University of Mexico.

The opening game was held at night at Randolph Park on May 15. Dale Edwards led an offensive explosion with four hits as the Wildcats trounced the Pumas by a score of 17-1. Left-hander Dick Corrigan struck out 18 on the evening to earn the victory.

The Arizona Daily Star's Abe Chanin wrote in the next day's paper that "the young sophomore hurler came within three of tying the University of Arizona strikeout record in handcuffing the Mexico U. Pumas last night."

Interestingly, Chanin noted that the strikeout record of 21 was set by Kenny Heist – which it was – but that it occurred in 1942. It actually was set in 1940 against New Mexico at Randolph Park.

Perhaps the biggest news to come from the Wildcats' victory that night, however, was that Arizona was awarded the school's first ever NCAA Tournament berth before the game. The Wildcats were tabbed to go up against Texas in Austin for the right to represent District 6 at the College World Series. The Wildcats lost that playoff two games to one.

But from that year on, Arizona became a household name in college baseball as the Wildcats emerged as regular participants in the district playoffs and eventually the College World Series. In fact, it became such a common occurrence that the Wildcats would often add unscheduled games prior to playing in the postseason.

In 1959, Arizona had secured a spot in the District 6 Playoffs and had wrapped up the regular season. But with a couple weeks before the playoffs, Coach Frank Sancet did not want his club to develop any rust before heading to College Station, Texas, to play at Texas A&M.

A year earlier, Arizona took two weeks off before packing up and heading to Austin, Texas. The Wildcats dropped the opening game and eventually bounced back to win the series, but the Wildcats struggled offensively.

"Maybe that hurt our hitting," Sancet admitted to the Tucson Daily Citizen about his 1958 squad. After escaping Texas in the District 6 playoffs, Arizona quickly was dispatched in two games at the College World Series in a performance that the paper described as "most anemic plate performances" of the season.

So in 1959, Sancet gave Wildcat fans one last treat with a tilt against a club team – Jameson Sporting Goods. The contest was set for 8 p.m. at Hi Corbett Field and a game the Wildcats would win, 6-5.

Interestingly, Jameson had defeated the Casa Grande Cotton Kings earlier in the year, the reigning state championship semi-pro team. The Cotton Kings were a regular on the UA schedule and happened to be the only team to sweep a series from the Wildcats in 1959.

The Wildcats also played games against Jameson and Casa Grande in the extra time leading up to the College World Series. Arizona won its first three games of the World Series that year, before dropping two-run decisions to Fresno State and Oklahoma State, putting an end to the program's bid for its first national title.

The Rivalry Games

Perhaps no Arizona baseball tradition at Hi Corbett Field was as strong as hosting Arizona State at the big ballpark under the lights. Fans filled the stands for the big rivalry games, particularly in the 1960s when Bobby Winkles was leading the Sun Devils to national prominence and giving Frank Sancet and the Wildcats a true rival.

In 1960, the Wildcats hosted the Sun Devils for a day-night double-header to close the regular season collegiate schedule (another game against the Casa Grande Cotton Kings was scheduled a few days later at Hi Corbett Field) with the nightcap taking place at Hi Corbett Field. The Wildcats won both games, hosted the District 6 Playoffs against Houston and went on to the College World Series.

Five years later, Arizona hosted all three games of an April set against the Sun Devils at Hi Corbett Field in 1965. The Wildcats took two out of three, but dropped all three games in Tempe a few weeks later and finished second in the Western Athletic Conference South. The Sun Devils won their first national championship that year while Arizona was kept out of the postseason.

The Wildcats extracted some revenge the following year. After dropping two of three games up the road in Tempe in April, Arizona hosted the Sun Devils for the regular season finale and, as was usually the case, the WAC South race came down to the season-ending showdown between the Wildcats and Sun Devils.

While not as strong as the national title team, Arizona State's roster boasted Reggie Jackson and posed a legitimate threat to the homestanding Wildcats. But Arizona's players and fans answered the bell in the biggest games of the year.

The Tucson Daily Citizen's Carl Porter summarized the frenzy that surrounded the series.

"[Pat] O'Brien pitched and batted the University of Arizona to a breathtaking 1-0 victory over arch-rival Arizona State University at Hi Corbett Field as 6,373 partisan fans screamed their approval."

John Lindblom would add that the crowd "strained the seams of Hi Corbett Field" and set UA attendance records for a single game as well as the season.

The 1-0 series-opening victory was hard fought. The Sun Devils out-hit the Wildcats 8-5, and Jackson, the starting center fielder, had two hits. But the Wildcats work was far from complete.

The series would be decided in a wild double-header at Hi Corbett Field a day later, when the Sun Devils rallied for a run in the seventh and another in the eighth to overcome and eventually hold off Arizona, 5-4, to tie the series.

The rubber match later in the evening saw a crowd of 5,368. The Sun Devils took a 1-0 lead in the second inning, but UA starter Mike Paul shut down the rivals the rest of his way as he went the distance for one of his five complete games of the season. The UA offense broke through for four runs in the fifth and two more in the sixth to pull away with a 6-1 series-clinching victory.

Arizona went on to defeat Wyoming in Laramie for the WAC Championship, swept Idaho in two games of the District 7 Playoffs in Tucson and ultimately went onto yet another College World Series Appearance, while Arizona State missed the playoffs.

Hi Corbett continued to be a big draw for the series in the 1970's. Before UA Field opened up in 1975, the final Arizona-Arizona State series to be played at Hi Corbett Field was in 1974, a year in which the Wildcats set a school record with 58 victories.

The three games to end the regular season were 14-3, 14-9 and 11-1 Wildcat romps over the Sun Devils. The series drew a then school record 22,786 fans for the three games. A few years later, at the newly revamped and lighted Wildcat Field, the series drew a new record 23,090 on campus in 1978.

Wildcat Field

In 1967, the Arizona baseball program proudly opened Wildcat Field. It was a much needed upgrade and moved the baseball facility from the current library location to where the structure remains today. However, Wildcat Field opened without lights and the baseball team still hosted plenty of games at Hi Corbett Field, accumulating a 37-15 record from 1967-74.

The need for lights at Wildcat Field was apparent even in the early stages of the 1975 season. On Feb. 22, Arizona played a double header against San Diego State at Wildcat Field. UA won the scheduled seven-inning first game 7-6, and then won a shortened second game 6-3 after the game was called after seven innings due to darkness.

A month later, the campus diamond was still waiting for the installation of the lights to be completed. On March 23, UA and Southern Illinois tied 4-4 after the game was called after 10 innings due to darkness at Wildcat Field. The Wildcats had prevailed the night prior, 15-0, before a crowd of 1,047 at Hi Corbett Field.

The 1975 season also included some of the school's frequent double-headers, with one game on campus and another in the evening at Hi Corbett Field. On March 15, Arizona defeated Northern Colorado, 7-3, at Wildcat Field. Later that day, UA defeated Northern Colorado, 8-3, before 1,159 fans at Hi Corbett Field. Pitcher Steve Powers doubled, scored a run and had an RBI as he improved to 7-0 in the season with a complete game four-hitter highlighted by 10 strikeouts in the nightcap.

A few weeks later, Arizona opened a three-game series with UTEP at Hi Corbett Field. The Wildcats won the opener 23-4 behind a complete game, 10-strikeout performance by Craig Gioia in front of 2,087 fans. The next day, UA won 11-4 in an afternoon game at Wildcat Field, before winning 20-1 in a nightcap at Hi Corbett Field in front of 1,566. Powers improved to 9-1 with eight strikeouts in seven innings.

But by season's end, the Wildcats were ready to turn on the lights at Wildcat Field. The first night game at Wildcat Field was played on April 18, 1975 when Arizona State beat Arizona, 9-1, before a record crowd of 9,118 fans. On that night, ASU's Floyd Bannister struck out 17 Wildcats and had a no hitter going until one out in the eighth inning when UA pinch hitter Scott Russell doubled.

While not the start the Wildcats had hoped for, they finally had an on-campus facility with lights to host night games, doubleheaders and NCAA postseason tournaments. The venue was renamed Frank Sancet Stadium in 1986 and later to Jerry Kindall Field at Frank Sancet Stadium in 2003. All added up, the ballpark hosted 1,604 games from 1967-2011, with the Wildcats winning 1,114 games against 486 losses and four ties.

Returning To An Old Home

For Arizona baseball, the numbers speak for themselves. The program boasts three national championships, 15 College World Series trips, 36 postseason appearances and 2,573 all-time victories. Only six schools have more titles and only six have more wins.

The rise to national prominence began in 1950 with the program's first-ever trip to the NCAA District Playoffs and it has continued for more than six decades. In that span, Arizona has had just four head coaches – Frank Sancet, Jerry Kindall, Jerry Stitt and Andy Lopez. It is a select group of men that has connected eras and generations of players to one great lineage of success. They have coached ball clubs at Randolph Municipal Baseball Park, UA Field and Wildcat Field.

Randolph Park eventually became Hi Corbett Field. UA Field was often referenced as University Field or the University Diamond over the years. Wildcat Field was renamed Frank Sancet Stadium and later Jerry Kindall Field at Frank Sancet Stadium.

As the years have rolled by and Arizona has upgraded its facilities on campus, the need to play night games at Hi Corbett Field has long since faded. From the mid 1970's through the 2000's, Arizona baseball's home as been at Frank Sancet Stadium at Jerry Kindall Field. It has become a sanctuary for Wildcat baseball that was the foundation for three national champion teams. Players from those years know no other home.

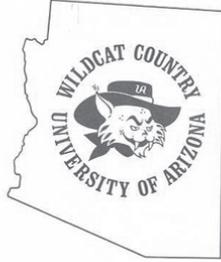

Going forward, however, Arizona has a chance to reinvent itself in today's college baseball landscape. Hi Corbett Field will provide the Wildcats with a venue full of amenities that is perhaps second to none in college baseball. Players will practice and play in a major league caliber facility used recently by the Colorado Rockies. Fans will enjoy giant grandstands with outstanding sightlines, free parking and the familiar big league ambiance that spring training offered for so many years.

In doing so, everything that Arizona baseball has accomplished in the years away from Hi Corbett will not only be remembered but celebrated. The history and tradition of Arizona baseball is too significant to ignore or forget. The program will always be defined by the legendary coaches, the outstanding ballplayers and the tremendous fans, whose support has accompanied the Wildcats no matter where the games have been played.

When the Wildcats take the field this spring, they are not moving into a new stadium. Instead, Arizona baseball is returning to an old home that has been the site of many special moments in the past and surely plenty more in the future. Regardless of the name of the stadium, Arizona baseball will continue its tradition of excellence.

Update: Arizona won the 2012 national championship after going 30-10 in its first full season at Hi Corbett Field. The Wildcats hosted the Tucson Regional and Tucson Super Regional, the first postseason college baseball games in Tucson since 1992. The Wildcats, who won a share of the Pac-12 title with a walk-off win over Arizona State on the final day of the regular season at Hi Corbett Field, swept both postseason events to earn the school's 16th all-time trip to the College World Series. Arizona led the West Coast in attendance, drawing more than 105,000 fans to games in 2012.

Jerry Kindall Field at Frank Sancet Stadium

Located on the corners of Enke and National Championship Drives in Tucson, Jerry Kindall Field at Frank Sancet Stadium served as the home of Arizona baseball on campus from 1967 through 2011. Originally called Wildcat Field, the park was officially dedicated Frank Sancet Field on April 19, 1986, in honor of Arizona's longtime head coach. Sancet, who coached from 1950-72, posted an 831-283-8 (.744) mark at the helm of the Cats. He led Arizona to 16 postseason appearances in his 23 years, including nine College World Series trips.

In January 2004 the facility was rededicated to honor two of collegiate baseball's most highly regarded coaches, Sancet and Jerry Kindall. The former Wildcat skippers combined to win 1,691 games at UA, advance to 14 College World Series and win three national titles.

Always known as a tough place for the opposition to win, the Wildcats emerged victorious in 1,114 games overall at the field since 1967, winning nearly 70-percent of the games played. UA posted 41 home winning seasons at the venue with an average of 25 wins per year at the field. In 1974 the Wildcats were nearly perfect in Tucson, posting a 37-1 home record, and they went 28-4 at home in 2007 to record the best home winning percentage (.875) since 1976.

Over the years, major improvements have been made to the facility. In 1988, a $160,000 scoreboard, complete with a computerized message center was purchased through advertising contracts with Gatorade and The Arizona Daily Star. Two years later, teams were provided a little more comfort than in previous seasons when new dugouts were added. They were built back deeper into the stands and are equipped with storage rooms. In 1997, the press box was improved and nearly tripled in size.

In recent years, the facility saw additional upgrades under Coach Andy Lopez. In 2003, a covered three-tunnel batting cage was added, a new wooden wall was installed a year later and in 2006 the playing field was replaced with a new laser-leveled surface along with the installation of a new video scoreboard beyond the right field wall. In 2007, a brand new press box opened and a Legends Plaza was added down the left field line.

The spacious playing field carried a distance of 360 feet down each foul line, 375 feet to the power alleys and 400 feet to center field. A 12-foot fence comes in to left and right center before giving way to a six-foot fence across the center field area. Eight poles of lights provide a well-illuminated field for evening games. In 1995, Kindall Field at Sancet Stadium got its own "Green Monster" with the installation of a wall designed to block traffic lights during night games.

Kindall Field at Sancet Stadium was the site of four NCAA Regional series, including ones that started Arizona's 1980 and '86 runs to the national title and current UA skipper Andy Lopez's CWS title-run in 1992 with Pepperdine.

The first game ever played at the facility was on Feb. 24, 1967. Arizona defeated Cal Poly Pomona, 8-7, that day. The final game played at the facility was on May 29, 2011 – an 8-2 Wildcat victory over Washington.

Tucson, Ariz.

Situated in the heart of Southern Arizona, Tucson is a city of stunning contrast and diversity. From the broad desert valley of world-famous saguaro cacti to 9,000-foot mountain forests of pine trees and snow, the city stands at a crossroads geographically and culturally.

In the metropolitan Tucson area, a population of just over one million is spread along a main valley floor of some 20 miles between Rincon mountain ranges to the east and the Tucson mountains to the west and into the foothills nestled against the backdrop of the Santa Catalina range to the north. On any of the 350 days of sunshine per year, the Santa Rita Mountains can be seen some 65 miles to the south between Arizona and Mexico.

It's just a 40-minute drive to the top of Mt. Lemmon, the southernmost ski resort in the United States, affording winter activities on the same day as a round of golf or any myriad of recreational opportunities in the area. Outdoor activities are the norm with hundreds of miles of hiking and biking trails, highlighted by Sabino Canyon which showcases the beauty of the desert with river-guided trails leading into the mountains.

The Sonoran Desert provides a unique setting. Far from the Saharan sand dunes that most first-time visitors expect, the desert boasts a wide range of wildlife and vegetation. An afternoon drive through the Saguaro National Park with its world-famous display of saguaro cacti highlights the unique beauty of the area. The unique Arizona-Sonorora Desert Museum, with its rich collection of desert wildlife and vegetation, is another popular visitors' destination.

Tucson is a two-hour drive from Tombstone, a two-hour drive from Phoenix, four hours from Mexico's Gulf of California coast, 70 miles from border city Nogales and within hours' drives from several major international bird-watching areas. World-class astronomy facilities on four nearby mountain ranges also attract visitors and specialists alike.

In addition to its natural attractions, Tucson features a wide range of cultural experiences. From the first Native American inhabitants to the earliest Spanish settlers to its current inhabitants, each group left an indelible mark on Tucson. Native American, Mexican and American Southwest influences are prevalent throughout the city. The Mission of San Xavier del Bac, located just nine miles from campus on the Tohono O'odham Nation, is one of the original missions built by the Spanish missionaries, and the artist colonies of Tubac and Bisbee are within a few hours drive as well.

Continuously settled for more than 12,000 years – the oldest such settlement in the United States— Tucson has grown from a small Native American village into one of the Sunbelt growth cities of the 21st century. It is one of the premier astronomy and optics centers in the world, an important health sciences hub and home to a renowned research institution in the University of Arizona.

Tucson has held fast to its small-town ambience, despite explosive growth. Historic sites compete with new resort-minded centers for nighttime entertainment and shopping, and the University constantly holds the center of the city's attention with its athletics and cultural activities.

Phoenix is a two-hour drive to the north and is home to NBA, NFL, NHL, Major League Baseball and WNBA franchises. Further north lie international attractions like the Grand Canyon, Sedona, the Painted Desert, Monument Valley and Lakes Powell and Mead. Las Vegas is only a seven-hour road trip away, as are other Pacific beach cities; San Diego is less than six hours away.

The nights are always cooler in the desert after a splendid sunset or a mid-afternoon dousing from a summer monsoon. That's when Tucson's small-town attitude and big city potential reveal themselves in the nighttime entertainment. From cultural events at the UA's Centennial Hall or the historic Fox Theatre, to the hot spots for a youthful population, there are activities to engage most any interest.

The melding of the city's diverse influences makes Tucson an ideal choice as a home, a vacation spot and a business magnet. With a population that includes college students, families of all backgrounds and thriving groups of young professionals and retirees, Tucson is a city with something for everyone.

The University of Arizona

Founded on 40 acres of land donated by a saloon-keeper and two gamblers, and funded by a $25,000 consolation prize in Tucson's competition for the Territorial capital, the University of Arizona rose from the desert floor of the true old West. Nobody wanted it, and fewer believed it would last. Fortunately, they were wrong, and the bet laid down by E.B. Gifford, Ben C. Parker and W.S. "Billy" Read on Nov. 27, 1886, has paid off into one of the finest research institutions in the world.

When the first 32 students arrived at the only building on campus in 1891, they began a tradition that has now entered its third century. The hitching posts for horses required to reach the edge of town may be gone, but "Old Main" remains as witness to the University's growth into a 400-acre Research I institution with nearly 200 buildings, more than 39,000 students, and a faculty and staff of 12,000.

Arizona's first university is the largest employer in Pima County and among the top 10 in Arizona with a payroll of half a billion dollars. The UA offers more than 325 degree fields in a dozen different colleges and another similar group of specialized schools.

The University of Arizona is one of the top 20 research universities in the nation and has played a part in groundbreaking projects ranging from the exploration of Mars to the development of new cancer treatments and pioneering breakthroughs in heart transplantation. UA's observational, theoretical and space astronomy programs have been ranked No. 1 in the country by the National Science Foundation (NSF) and recent other rankings placed 17 of the University's graduate programs among the top 20 in the nation. In addition, the Nobel Prize, three Pulitzer Prizes and the National Medal of Science have been bestowed upon Arizona educators.

Not to be forgotten, the University's undergraduate programs continue to flourish. The NSF considers Arizona to be one of the 10 universities that best integrates teaching and research for undergraduates. The NASA-funded space grant program pays undergraduates to work in laboratories alongside faculty, and the Undergraduate Biology Research Program includes 43 departments, involves 240 faculty sponsors and funds 140 undergraduate researchers annually. The Eller College of Management and the McGuire Center for Entrepreneurship are rated in the global top 10 by Finance Times. The University was named in an Elite 50 list of institutions for academically-minded athletes in 2009.

UA's top-notch programs develop top-name graduates who have continued on to success in their respective fields. The UA boasts a laundry list of graduates who have significantly impacted society. From the late U.S. Congressman Morris K. Udall to Joan Ganz Cooney, founder of the Children's Television Workshop, to Emmy Award winning actor/comedian Garry Shandling, UA graduates have made their mark on the world.

The UA also plays host to the world, with students representing all 50 states and 130 countries. Nearly a quarter of the student body consists of under-represented racial and ethnic groups, and the campus is located in one of the most diverse locations in the country, with the influence of Native American and Mexican cultures evident throughout the Tucson community.

The University of Arizona is in its third century of service with a continued commitment to providing support to its undergraduate population. Recently completed and current construction projects are testaments to the fact that the UA is dedicated to continued progress. The Integrated Learning Center, located underneath the grass Mall in the middle of campus, provides a home base for freshmen, with classrooms and offices for easier access to faculty and staff. The Student Union embraces the ambience of the Southwest with shaded terraces and open-air walkways, and provides numerous services such as the bookstore, technology center and varied restaurants that serve the UA community. The SALT (Strategic Alternative Learning Techniques) Center enhances aid to students with learning disabilities.

This commitment to excellence ensures that the University of Arizona will continue to grow from its auspicious beginnings as a single-building outpost in the desert into a world-renowned center for knowledge and research well into the next century.

Dr. Ann Weaver Hart University President

Ann Weaver Hart came to the University of Arizona from Temple University, where she served as president from July 2006 until she assumed the presidency of the UA in July 2012. Before then, she served as president of the University of New Hampshire and provost and vice president for Academic Affairs at Claremont Graduate University, in Claremont, California. At the University of Utah, she served as professor of educational leadership, dean of the Graduate School and special assistant to the president.

President Hart received a bachelor of science in history, a master of arts in history and a doctorate in educational administration, from the University of Utah. Her research interests include leadership succession and development, work redesign and organizational behavior in educational organizations, and academic freedom. She has published more than 85 peer-reviewed articles and book chapters, five books and edited volumes, and other articles and essays.

Among the professional and community service awards that President Hart has received are the Jack Culbertson Award in Educational Administration from the University Council for Educational Administration; the Outstanding Professional Award from the Business and Professional Women's Foundation; the PoWeR Award from the Professional Women's Roundtable; the 2009 Champion of Diversity and Access Award from the Urban STEM Strategy Group; and the Outstanding Community Service Award from the Network for Teaching Entrepreneurship. In addition to serving as the 21st President of the University, President Hart holds a faculty appointment in the College of Education as Professor of Educational Policy Studies & Practice.

President Hart currently serves as a member of the following organizations: American Association of Universities, Association of Public Land Grant Universities, Arizona State Board of Education, Campus Research Corporation, Greater Phoenix Leadership, Southern Arizona Leadership Council, Tucson Regional Economic Opportunities, Chairman's Circle, UA Alumni Board, UA Foundation Board, Udall Foundation, and the University of New Hampshire Foundation Board of Directors (member emeritus).

Greg Byrne Director of Athletics

Greg Byrne was named Arizona's 11th Director of Athletics in March 2010. Prior to coming to Arizona, Byrne was Mississippi State University's Director of Athletics, where he was the youngest top current athletic administrator in the Southeastern Conference and the youngest to lead an athletic program at the NCAA Division I-A level. He started his tenure at MSU in June 2006 as Associate Athletic Director for External Affairs.

He has been around successful athletic programs, and the director's chair, literally all his life. He is the son of long-time athletic administrator Bill Byrne, the recently retired Director of Athletics at Texas A&M University. Byrne, however, has made a name for himself in intercollegiate athletics. He had 15 years of professional experience prior to assuming the AD's position, a resume that shows progressive growth in both responsibility and achievement. He has been directly involved in raising over $160 million in gifts during his career in athletics.

Byrne was named by the Sports Business Journal to its 2011 class of "Forty Under 40" top sports management leaders in March 2011. A native of Pocatello, Idaho, Byrne earned his bachelor's degree in 1994 and his master's degree from Mississippi State in 2009. Byrne is married to the former Regina Misa of Junction City, Ore., and the couple has two teenage sons: Nick and Davis.

The Pac-12 Conference The Conference of Champions

Built on a foundation of academic excellence and superior athletic performance, the Conference ushered in a new era on July 1, 2011, officially becoming the Pac-12 Conference with the additions of the University of Colorado and University of Utah.

Just 27 days after the Conference officially changed its name, Commissioner Larry Scott announced the creation of the Pac-12 Networks on July 27, 2011, solidifying a landmark television deal and putting the Conference on the forefront. The Networks, including one national network and six regional networks, in conjunction with four of the nation's largest cable operators, marked the first time a U.S. collegiate conference or any other programmer has launched a collection of networks across a variety of platforms, rather than a sole network. In addition, the "TV everywhere" rights will allow fans to access coverage outside the home on any digital device, including smartphones and tablet computers.

On the field, the Pac-12 rises above the rest, upholding its tradition as the "Conference of Champions"®, claiming an incredible 119 NCAA team titles since 1999-2000, including nine in 2012-13. That is an average of over nine championships per academic year. Even more impressive has been the breadth of the Pac-12's success, with championships coming in 28 different men's and women's sports. The Pac-12 has led or tied the nation in NCAA Championships in 46 of the last 52 years, including the last seven years consecutively.

Spanning nearly a century of outstanding athletics achievements, the Pac-12 was the first conference to reach 400 championships in 2010-11. With the inclusion of Colorado and Utah, the Conference surpassed another major milestone, with league teams capturing 450 titles, outdistancing the next conference by nearly 200. In all, Conference teams have won 451 NCAA Championships (306 men's, 145 women's).

The Conference's reputation is further proven in the annual Learfield Sports Directors' Cup competition, the prestigious award that honors the best overall collegiate athletics programs in the country. Stanford continued its remarkable run and won its unprecedented 18th-consecutive Directors' Cup in 2011-12. For the second-straight year, six of the top 25 Division I programs were Pac-12 member institutions: No. 1 Stanford, No. 3 UCLA, No. 7 USC, No. 11 California, No. 19 Arizona and No. 24 Oregon. With three teams in the top 10, it was the most of any conference.

The Conference's nine national titles came in the form of five women's and four men's crowns. Six different league schools claimed NCAA titles and, of the five NCAA institutions to have won multiples titles, three were from the Pac-12.

Postseason participation was a common occurrence for the Pac-12 in 2011-12. Of the 22 sports sponsored by the Conference, 14 witnessed at least half its teams participating in NCAA or other postseason action. The men sent 53 of a possible 101 teams into the postseason, while the women sent 67 of a possible 113 teams.

Pac-12 members have won 306 NCAA team championships on the men's side, 89 more than the next closest conference. Men's NCAA crowns have come at a phenomenal rate for the Pac-12 - 16 basketball titles by six schools (more than any other conference), 53 tennis titles, 45 outdoor track & field crowns, and 27 baseball titles. Pac-12 members have won 25 of 43 NCAA titles in volleyball, 38 of 42 in water polo, 27 in skiing, and 23 in swimming & diving national championships.

Individually, the Conference has produced an impressive number of NCAA men's individual champions, as well, boasting 2,073 individual crowns.

On the women's side, the story is much the same. Since the NCAA began conducting women's championships 31 years ago, Pac-12 members have claimed at least four national titles in a single season on 22 occasions, including the last 12-consecutive years. Overall, the Pac-12 has captured 145 NCAA women's titles, easily outdistancing the SEC, which is second, with 88. Pac-12 members have dominated a number of sports, winning 23 softball titles, 19 tennis crowns, 14 volleyball titles, 14 of the last 23 trophies in golf, and 13 in swimming & diving.

Pac-12 women student-athletes shine nationally on an individual basis, as well, having captured an unmatched 642 NCAA individual crowns, an average of nearly 21 championships per season.

2012 National Champions

Invigorated by the transition to Hi Corbett Field, Arizona baseball re-established itself as one of the premier programs across the nation in 2012. Excitement and optimism surrounded the program leading up to Opening Weekend against North Dakota State, and nearly 9,000 turned out to the old, but new home of Arizona baseball on a few chilly late February days. Hall of Fame coach Jerry Kindall was joined by fellow coaches Jim Wing and Jerry Stitt, along with over 100 baseball alums, including 1980 Golden Spikes Award winner Terry Francona, to unify support for the program stepping into a promising new era.

Arizona boasted a veteran offensive lineup that kept it ranked consistently in the top-20 of the national polls throughout the season. Momentum began to build by mid-season, when the Wildcats swept then-No. 2 Stanford in three games at Hi Corbett Field. The series drew 10,756 fans, the most for a three-game home set in more than 20 seasons. It was a weekend that proved two things: 1) Arizona could compete with any team in the country, and 2) the Wildcats had a true home field advantage with large and spirited crowds that would be attractive in the bidding process to host postseason games.

The Wildcats stumbled upon two bumps in the road as they hit the second half of the season. Despite winning the opening-game of a three-game showdown against UCLA, the Wildcats dropped their first weekend series of the season in mid-April. A few weeks later, Arizona dropped out of the Pac-12 lead when Oregon took two-of-three from the Cats in Tucson. From that point on, Arizona was in playoff-mode if it wished to contend for the Pac-12 Championship and host an NCAA regional for the first time since 1992.

Arizona promptly swept California, won a non-conference tilt in Tempe against Arizona State, and won two-of-three at USC to post an impressive 6-1 record on a season-long seven-game road swing. That kept the Cats in position for a Pac-12 Championship going into the final weekend, but they still trailed the Oregon Ducks by one full game and UCLA was just a game behind the Wildcats. Alas, Oregon was swept by its rival, Oregon State, while the Bruins swept their rival, USC. Arizona captured a pair of thrilling walk-off wins on a weekend that drew 14,055 fans to Hi Corbett Field, the second win coming on the final day of the season when Johnny Field lined a single into left field to secure the Wildcats the Pac-12 Co-Championship with UCLA, the Wildcats' first league crown since 1992.

On that final Sunday in May, Arizona also learned that it would host an NCAA Regional for the first time since 1992. The following weekend, the Wildcats hosted Missouri, Louisville and New Mexico State in the double-elimination tournament. Arizona's opening game was a 15-3 rout of the Tigers before a crowd of more than 5,000. A day later, the Wildcats dismantled Louisville, 16-4, before more than 4,000 fans. And on a Sunday evening, Arizona again clobbered the Cardinals, 16-3, to advance to the Super Regionals for the first time since 1988. That same day, No. 6 national seed North Carolina was upset in Chapel Hill by St. John's, opening the door for the Wildcats to host the Red Storm in the Super Regionals the following weekend.

Due to television obligations, the Tucson Super Regional games were slated for noon starts in the summer heat. It did not faze the Wildcats or their fans. An enthusiastic throng of 2,500 showed up on a Friday afternoon – a work day nonetheless – to witness a most thrilling comeback. Behind ace Kurt Heyer, the Wildcats fell behind the Red Storm, 5-0. But Heyer remained resilient, buying his offense enough time to chip away at the deficit and eventually tie the game 5-5. The game went into the 10th inning, when Heyer, who was still pitching despite giving up a career-high 17 hits, allowed the go-ahead run. Arizona had one more rally left in the tank, scoring a pair of runs in the bottom half of the inning, including a walk-off single by freshman Trent Gilbert to hand the hosts a 6-5 extra-inning victory. A day later, right-hander Konner Wade tossed a complete game and the Wildcats outscored the Red Storm, 7-4, before nearly 4,000 sun-drenched fans who stayed to celebrate Arizona clinching a berth to the College World Series for the 16th time in school history.

Arizona arrived in Omaha a week later as one of the hottest teams in the country, winners in 13 of their last 15 ballgames, including six straight and all five in the postseason. Still, top-seed Florida, second-seed UCLA and two-time defending national champion South Carolina were the favorites. Arizona's first opponent, Florida State, was coached by Mike Martin, in search of his first national championship despite 15 appearances in Omaha. The Wildcats were even overshadowed by Cinderella stories from Stony Brook and Kent State, making the first appearance for their respective schools. However, over the course of the next two weeks, the 2012 Wildcats cemented their place in College World Series lore as one of the most dominant teams in recent memory.

The Wildcats opened eyes by winning their first game against the Seminoles in dramatic fashion. Locked in a 3-3 tie, the game turned into a battle of the bullpens, presumed to be an Arizona weakness, in the late stages. A pair of freshmen – Tyler Crawford and Mathew Troupe – went toe-to-toe against the more heralded 'Noles bullpen and pitched 4.1 shutout innings. Then in the top of the 12th, Joey Rickard roped a one-out double to left-center and Johnny Field followed with a run-scoring double to right-center to hand the Wildcats a 4-3 edge. Troupe closed the door in the bottom of the inning, ending the game with a strikeout and stranding the tying run at third base for the victory.

A showdown with Pac-12 co-champion UCLA awaited, and again it was the Arizona pitching that stole the show. Wade tossed his second-consecutive complete game in the postseason, limiting the Bruins to just five hits in a 4-0 shutout win. Wade, who retired the first 14 batters of the game in order, became the first pitcher to throw a complete game shutout at the College World Series without a walk on his pitching line since 1972. He received all the run support he needed in a four-run fourth inning that held up as the final score and put Arizona in the driver's seat with three days of rest before its next game.

Heyer and the Wildcats watched as Florida State eliminated the Bruins, to set up a rematch with the Seminoles. With a berth to the championship series on the line,

Arizona wasted no time jumping out to a big lead. The Wildcats scored six first-inning runs and later added homers from Robert Refsnyder and Bobby Brown en route to a dominating 10-3 romp over Florida State. Heyer pitched into the eighth inning for the fourth time in as many postseason starts, and he earned his 13th victory of the season to take over the national lead.

South Carolina, which had lost its second game of the CWS to Arkansas, furiously fought back through the loser's bracket and defeated the Razorbacks twice to earn a spot in the championship finals for the third straight year. On paper, it was another classic Arizona offense vs. opponent's pitching. But Arizona's pitching staff was quietly becoming the key to success in the postseason.

Arizona sent Wade to the mound in the opening game, and the Scottsdale native delivered another dazzling pitching performance. Boosted by a two-run homer by Refsnyder in the first inning, the Wildcats rode the arm of Wade to an impressive 5-1 victory over the Gamecocks. Wade was masterful, allowing just six hits and a walk in his third-straight complete game performance of the postseason. He also became the first pitcher to toss two complete games at the College World Series since 2004, and put the Wildcats one win away from their fourth national championship.

Andy Lopez faced a difficult decision heading into the second game of the championship series. He could send his ace to the mound on short rest and match him up against South Carolina's postseason hero, Michael Roth, who was scheduled to throw on three days of rest. Instead, Lopez opted to send out No. 3 starter James Farris, who had not pitched in a game for 22 days since he shut out Louisville in the final game of the Tucson Regional.

Farris pitched perhaps the best game of his young career, matching up with the All-American from South Carolina. The Wildcat right-hander tossed 7.2 innings, allowed only a pair of hits and just one run, exiting with two down in a 1-1 tie and the go-ahead run on base in the eighth inning. Troupe entered to strikeout the final hitter in the eighth, stranding the go-ahead run and sending the Wildcats back to the dugout with the momentum. Refsnyder, the 2012 Most Outstanding Player at the College World Series, led off the top of the ninth with a single. He was bunted to second base, before Bobby Brown drew an intentional walk that put defensive replace Brandon Dixon at the plate with one down. Hitless in his limited at bats in Omaha, Dixon ripped a slider down the third base lined for an RBI double. One batter later, Gilbert lined a two-run single to right field to open a three-run lead for the Wildcats. Troupe, despite loading the bases and allowing the winning run to step to the plate with one out, escaped the jam with a lineout and a flyout to capture the national championship with a 4-1 victory.

The Wildcats returned to Tucson a day later and were greeted by over 5,000 crazed fans at McKale Center celebrating the national championship trophy returning to Tucson for the first time since 1986. Much like they did on Opening Weekend, former coaches Kindall, Wing and Stitt were on hand to celebrate the school's fourth national championship. It was a fitting end to a magical season as the past and present of Arizona baseball helped set the stage for a bright future in the years to come. Indeed, Arizona is back amongst the nation's elite.

1986 National Champions

Returning all eight starters in field, the Wildcats won their third national championship in baseball. The Wildcat Nine started the season ranked third in the country and after splitting a two game series with Grand Canyon, Arizona faced Division II foe Cal-State Dominguez Hills. Behind the coaching of current Wildcat skipper Andy Lopez; the Toros shocked the Cats by taking two of three at Suncet Field. Despite the early setback, the Cats got back on track and jumped out to a 23-12 record at the midpoint of the season. The Cats went on a roll in the second half of the regular season, finishing 10-3 in their final 13 games, including a sweep over Arizona State in the regular season series finale. Arizona finished tied with Stanford for second place in the Pac-10 South and received an at-large bid for the NCAA Tournament.

Sent to Austin, Texas, Arizona breezed through the Central Region. The Cats crushed San Diego State 26-5 in their opening game in postseason play. The first three hitters in Arizona's order, Tommy Hinzo, Chip Hale and Mike Senne, combine for 10 of Arizona's 25 hits in the game, 11 RBIs and seven runs scored. Against host school Texas, the Cats broke open the contest with five runs in fifth, en route to a 9-3 win. In the next game, a six-run third proved to be more than Pepperdine could handle in a 10-6 UA win, giving the Cats control of the region. The Waves put up a fight in the regional championship game, but the Cats' Gil Heredia tossed a complete game for his 15th win of the season in UA's 5-3 win. The victory pushed the Cats' season to Omaha and the 14th College World Series appearance in school history.

In what is considered to be one of the most dramatic games in College World Series history, Arizona and Maine's opening round game provided fireworks down to the final pitch and proved that no opponent's lead was safe while facing Kindall's "Cardiac Kids". Down 7-0 through the first six and a half innings, the Wildcats rallied for a run in the seventh, four in the eighth and three in the ninth to steal the victory from the Black Bears, 8-7. Dave Shermet's name will long be remembered by Wildcat fans for his ninth inning heroics in that opening game. In a scene from every ballplayer's childhood dreams, the pinch-hitting sophomore lined a full-count, two-out pitch over the scoreboard in left field for a walk-off, two-run homer. Senior Joe Estes, who would win a pair of games out of the bullpen for Arizona in the CWS, was the beneficiary of Shermet's heroics, earning the victory with a perfect inning of relief.

The come-from-behind method of victory would be a tactic employed by the Wildcats throughout the CWS. In game seven of the series, the Cats trailed Loyola Marymount, 5-4, through six innings. Todd Trafton's two-run homer in the seventh gave them the lead and an insurance run in the eighth provided an extra run in the 7-5 Arizona victory. Game One winner Estes tallied his second win in as many games on the mound. The left-hander came on in relief of starter Gary Alexander and shut down the Lions bats with 3 1/3 innings of two-hit work.

Florida State jumped out to a quick 5-1 lead through the first two innings in Game 11, but future Major Leaguer Gil Heredia settled down on the mound and limited the Seminole offense to only four hits over the final seven innings in a complete game performance. The Wildcat bats bailed Heredia out with a five-run sixth, three of which came on Mike Senne's home run to left-center. The Cats went on to win, 9-5, for their third victory in Omaha.

Miami (Fla.) ruined Arizona's perfect run through the series with a 4-2 win in Game 13, but true to fashion, the Wildcats had a chance to come back. Arizona scored once in the ninth to make it a two run lead and had the tying runs on first and third when the final out was recorded.

Arizona's lone loss in the '86 World Series didn't temper the Cats in the championship game. Arizona exploded for 10 runs on 11 hits against Florida State. Starter Alexander tossed a complete game for his eighth win of the season, defeating 20-game winner Mike Loynd in the process. Gar Millay went 3-for-4 in the game with a home run, three RBIs and two runs scored. World Series MVP Senne was 2-for-5 with a home run, two RBIs and two runs scored. He finished the five-game series 10-for-21 (.476) with two home runs, eight runs scored and six RBIs.

1980 National Champions

With the lessons learned from the College World Series experience in 1979, the Wildcats nabbed their second national championship in baseball. Powered by Golden Spikes Award winner and College World Series MVP Terry Francona at the plate and Craig Lefferts on the mound, the 1980 team was on a mission for the championship.

Opening the season with a three game series against defending national champion Cal-State Fullerton, UA set the early tone for the season by taking a pair of games from the Titans. However, the Cats found themselves with a very average 17-11-3 record 31 games into the season, but a sweep over Colorado in the final non-conference series of the year propelled the Cats to 14 wins in their next 17 games. In the final series of the season, against Arizona State, the Cats faced their in-state rival with a 31-14-3 record. With Arizona needing only one win to qualify for the NCAA tournament, the Sun Devils pushed UA to the final regular season game before succumbing to a dominate Wildcat team, 22-4. Including the West Regional, hosted by Arizona, a school record 113,951 fans came out to Wildcat Field to watch the Cats in 1980, an average of over 3,250 fans per game.

In what was considered the toughest regional in the country, sixth-ranked Arizona came from behind to top ninth-ranked Fresno State and thrice beat upstart Gonzaga, which had upset defending national champion Cal-State Fullerton twice, to advance to its second consecutive College World Series, its 12th overall appearance.

Much like the 1976 championship team, the Cats dropped their first game of the College World Series losing, 6-1, to St. John's. Battling back from the losers bracket, freshman sensation Ed Vosberg earned his sixth win of the season with a 5-3 victory over Florida State. Lefferts shut down Big Ten power Michigan 8-0 in game three, handcuffing the Wolverines on five hits, while striking out seven.

Up next was the only undefeated team left in World Series play, the Hawaii Rainbows. Arizona's chances for a second national title looked bleak as the Rainbows held a 2-0 lead into the eighth. Faced with tournament elimination, Scott Stanley launched a 380-foot grand slam into a 15 m.p.h. wind to give Cats a 4-2 advantage. UH responded with a pair of runs of its own in the bottom of the eighth to tie the score and send the game into extra innings. In the 11th, Dwight Taylor and John Moses came up back-to-back triples to open the inning, giving the Cats the lead. After tacking on an insurance run for a 6-4 advantage, Greg Barger closed out the victory on the mound for his seventh win of the season.

Arizona's incredible ride continued for another day. In what many considered to be the national championship game, the Cats met up with Pac-10 foe Cal for the right to advance to the title game. A seesaw shootout between the Bears and Cats ensued. Cal jumped out to a 8-3 lead through four innings, but the perseverant Cats chalked up five of their own in the fifth to tie the game. Not to be outdone, the Bears plated two of their own in the sixth for a 10-8 advantage. The cornered Cats clawed their way back with a run in the eighth and two in the ninth to steal the win, 11-10, and advance to the World Series title game, a re-match with Hawaii.

Unlike the two previous games, the title game offered very little surprises as Arizona built up a 5-1 lead on UH, and held on for a 5-3 victory. Coach Kindall was quoted as saying "there was no way Hawaii was going to beat us.". Pitching heroes Lefferts and Barger earned the win and save, respectively, in the title game.

The two hurlers were both named to the All-World Series team. Lefferts posted a 2-0 record with a 0.57 ERA and nine strikeouts in 15.2 innings pitched. Barger earned two saves and a win in 10.1 innings. He struck out 10 while surrendering only one earned run. World Series MVP Francona recorded an impressive .458 batting average (11-for-24) while swatting a home run, two doubles and a triple. He drove in six and scored seven times in six games. Also named to the All-World Series team was first baseman Wes Clements. Clements finished the series hitting .318 (7-for-22) with two home runs and two doubles. He drove in five and scored five times as well. Coach Kindall was named Coach of the Year for the second time.

1976 National Champions

The 1976 baseball team won the first of the University of Arizona's 16 national championships in school history.

After posting a 48-16 regular season record, the Cats cruised through the Midwest Regional in Edinburg, Texas, scoring 23 times in three games while surrendering only a total of three runs. Arizona shutout Pan American, 5-0, behind the pitching of Steve Powers' five hitter in the opening game of the regional. Missouri provided little challenge in game two, as UA raced out to 5-1 lead through six and added two more in the seventh and three in the eighth for a 10-1 victory.

Every Wildcat starter had at least one hit in the game and eight of the starting nine scored at least once. With a trip to the College World Series on the line, the Wildcats left no doubt as to who it would be, as Arizona dismantled Texas A&M, 8-2. Sophomore Dave Crutcher struck out 12 Aggies in a complete game performance on the mound.

In Omaha, Arizona lost a game early, but never lost hope. Up 4-2 through seven innings in its first game in Omaha, UA stumbled, 7-6, in 10-innings to rival Arizona State to fall into the losers bracket.

Down, but not out, the Cats rallied after their initial loss. UA bested Oklahoma, 10-2, in game two behind a 5-for-6, two RBI, three run performance by All-American Ron Hassey. In game three, against Clemson, Arizona jumped out to an early 6-1 lead and held on for a 10-6 victory. Don Zimmerman and Pete Van Horne supplied the fireworks against the Tigers, combining for five hits, five RBIs and five runs scored.

Eastern Michigan, whom the Cats would see again in the title game was up next. Les Pearsey's three run home run in the fifth brought the Cats back from an early deficit and a five run ninth earned the Cats a 11-6 win and a chance at redemption for their lone CWS loss.

Facing the Sun Devils for the eighth time in 1976 the Wildcats, and more importantly Steve Powers, had Arizona State's number. Working a complete game, Powers surrendered only four hits and a lone unearned run in the bottom of the ninth for a 5-1 win and a berth in the fourth title-game in school history.

Facing Eastern Michigan for the second time in the series, the result was very much the same, as UA crushed the Eagles 7-1 for the national championship. Dave Stegman and Powers each had three RBIs in the game and Rob Chaulk tossed a complete game six hitter.

Designated hitter/pitcher Powers was named the World Series MVP after completing the six games 8-for-22 (.364) with six RBIs and two home runs, including a two-run shot in the championship game. He also worked 17.1 innings on the mound, including the complete game, four hitter against Arizona State in the semifinal game. He struck out 10 in two appearances.

Coach Jerry Kindall, who became the first person to both play for and coach a national championship team, was honored with the Coach of the Year Award by the ABCA, the first of three such awards that he would win during his tenure at UA.
