Wildcats Kick Off Home Schedule Against The Citadel

Arizona welcomes the Bulldogs to Arizona Stadium for the first of four straight home games over the course of five weeks.

Some Game Themes

The Wildcats look to build on the momentum of a solid victory in their season opener... UA welcomes a young FCS squad and first-time opponent to Arizona Stadium for the 2010 UA home opener... The Citadel brings the tradition of the 89-year-old Southern Conference (SoCon) to Tucson, but a recent history lesson might be SoCon colleague Appalachian State over No. 5 Michigan in 2007... Arizona's defense tests its apparent reprise against a triple option club and quarterback Matt Thompson, who threw three touchdown passes on just six overall throws... The Bulldogs make a 2,053-mile jaunt for the game, somewhat lengthy based on their traditional travel plans involving buses, the longest football trip in its history... Arizona's spread offense will challenge The Citadel's defensive leader, senior cornerback and co-captain Cortez Allen... UA's Mike Stoops and Bulldogs head coach Kevin Higgins continue to work through some off-season tweaks to their staffs. Stoops hired two new coaches and appointed four coordinators while Higgins replaced his two coordinators and three other new members... The game will be celebrated as "Public Safety Night" in Arizona stadium... UA players and coaches will embark on their first "Wildcat Walk" as they arrive on campus two hours prior to kickoff.

Last Week

Arizona set a single-game passing percentage record in throwing for 415 yards and three scores to punctuate a broader team effort at Toledo, defeating the Rockets, 41-2. UA's Nick Foles (32-for-37, 86%) and Matt Scott (5-for-7, 71%) combined for an. 841 mark and new standard. Foles' individual effort was the second-highest percentage in UA history, to go along with his two TD throws and 360 yards. Eleven of his throws were grabbed by Juron Criner, who amassed 187 yards plus snagged a fade in the endzone, to put his name in the Arizona single-game top 10 for yards (and again for game catches). The Cats had a bit of inconsistency running the ball (105 yards, albeit at a solid 4.2 yards per tote), so they didn't persist, instead turning to their multi-faceted passing game. Ten different receivers ended up in the stats. Meantime, the Cats played some wicked defense, holding Toledo to 183 net yards and zero offensive points. The two points the Rockets did score came when a holding penalty in the endzone turned a scramble for a first down by Scott into a safety in the second period. The Rockets managed 3.6 yards per play on only 51 tries and had only two forays into UA territory including a 1st-and-goal at the UA 8 yard-line that was turned back. UA had a gaudy 9.4 yards per pass attempt and 7.5 yards per play in building a 518-yard day on offense. Nic Grigsby rushed eight times for 53 yards (6.6 ypc) and scored twice, once on a 36-yard double cut-back jaunt in the first half. Arizona's average scoring drive on six touchdown journeys was nine plays, 70 yards and 3:40 -- deliberate, economical and to the point. UA's new linebacker starters -- juco transfers Paul Vassallo and Derek Earls, and sophomore Jake Fischer -- combined for 18 tackles to go with an interception and three PBUs from Earls.

The Coaches

Arizona - Mike Stoops (Iowa '86), seventh year (34-39) at UA and overall as a head coach. Stoops returned Arizona from a 2-10 program the year before his arrival to the national rankings in his tenure, and has taken the Wildcats to successive bowl games to close the decade. His recruiting and player development programs have put talent back on the field and sent more than a dozen players to the professional ranks via the draft or free agency in the past four years. He has coached national award winners and a combined 28 All-Pacific-10 players. His Arizona clubs have beaten a ranked team each of his years in the red and blue, Arizona football attendance has been a positive feature of a home-field advantage under Coach Stoops, with crowds averaging 93 percent of capacity each of his six seasons at Arizona Stadium. Arizona's football team APR checked in with an improved mark each of the five seasons since his inaugural year. The Citadel - Kevin Higgins (West Chester '77), seventh year with the Bulldogs (25-32) and 14th year overall (81-57-1). He began his collegiate coaching career as an assistant at Richmond (1981-84), was first a head coach at Lehigh (1994-2000), and has coached QBs and receivers in the NFL. Aside from his lengthy head coaching experience, his career has been centered on offense.

Suit Up and Get in There

Arizona pretty much maxed out last week, using 60 players on the road at Toledo. Among those were true freshman defensive backs Marquis Flowers, Jonathan McKnight and Shaquille Richardson, and snapper Chase Gorham. Other first timers were redshirt freshman DT Sione Tuihalamaka, redshirt freshman LB Trevor Erno, redshirt freshman DT Justin Washington, redshirt freshman TE Jack Baucus, transfer junior WR Gino Crump, juco transfer LBs Paul Vassallo, Derek Earls and LB Bilal Muhammed, and sophomore DE Brett Thompson. Tuihalamaka, Vassallo, Earls and Baucus earned their first starts, while Washington played extensively and had a sack on his first scrimmage play, and the three true freshmen DBs, Thompson and Gorham started on special teams. Crump had a pair of fourth-quarter receptions. Stoops' staff has recruited well and developed talent quickly based on the 2010 debut appearances.

Double Dip for Balance

Arizona checks in No. 14 nationally in the FBS for total defense (183.0) and No. 21 for total offense (518.0), not bad for an early-year hint of balance. The defense will be challenged this week by The Citadel's triple option attack that produced 247 rushing yards and 374 total in a 56-14 rout of Chowan last week... Chowan had some success throwing the ball against the Dogs, with 245 yards -- but was held to 1.9 yards per rush by The Citadel defense... UA's predominant use of the Coin-Operated Defense last week (nickel and dime formations) might not be the thing again a team like Citadel that ran the ball 52 times against a total of six passes.

Deuces Are Wild (and Rare)

When the Wildcats held Toledo to just two points in the season opener, it marked just the fifth game in UA's entire football history that either Arizona or its opponent finished the game with exactly two points on the scoreboard. The last time a "2" was seen on the scoreboard to conclude a game was in a 24-2 Wildcat loss to New Mexico on Oct. 9, 1965. Two years prior, UA dropped a 7-2 contest to Washington State in Spokane, Wash. Go back 100 years, and you'll find the first and only previous time a Wildcat opponent finished with two points. That was when UA defeated New Mexico State 18-2 in 1910.

Touchdownless Defense

Arizona held Toledo to just two points (offensive holding penalty in endzone) in the 2010 season opener. It marked the second time -- and first time on the road -- in the Stoops era that the Wildcats held the opposition without a touchdown. Interestingly, the first time was also in a season opener when UA shut out Idaho 70-0 in 2008. The two points surrendered to the Rockets were the fewest allowed by the Cats in a road game since 1993, when UA shut out Oregon State, 33-0, in Corvallis, Ore.. A shutout in a non-home game of note was certainly that same season, when the Cats boateraced Miami 29-0 at the neutral site Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz. Since, the only other occasions when an opponent did not score a touchdown on its home field were in 2000. That season, UA defeated Stanford, 27-3, in Palo Alto, Calif., and Utah, 17-3, in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Best to Not See Red

Arizona is tied for first nationally in red zone defense after Toledo was unsuccessful on its lone trip inside the 20-yard line. The single penetration allowed is tied for best in the nation along with Miami, Colorado, Ohio State, Tulane and Central Michigan.

Flaring, Dumping and Swinging Away

Arizona's Keola Antolin (5-23) and Nic Grigsby (3-24) showed in the opener that UA will be interested in throwing the ball to its running backs this year. Those two and Greg Nwoko combined for 48 catches a year ago, with the latter the RB leader at 18 grabs for 186 yards. Whether it's an increased emphasis this year or just quarterbacks finding the open man is a matter for the offensive coaching staff.

Where Grigsby Stacks Up

Senior tailback Nic Grigsby ranks No. 8 on the UA career rushing yards chart with 2,477 yards to date. That total puts him No. 10 on the list of active players in the NCAA for career rushing yards. Grigsby needs 523 yards to become the school's sixth player to reach 3,000 career rushing yards. He already has jumped to No. 4 on the career rushing touchdowns chart at UA with 22, and checks in at No. 17 for active players nationally.

Special Special Teams

Bug Wright's punt returns puts UA 16th nationally in that team category, but other players also shined in the opener. UA punter Keenyn Crier's three kicks for a 43.0 average are one punt shy of rating near the national top 25 but together with UA's coverage team helped UA to a No. 6 rating in team net punting (46.3) thanks to a fumble caused by Mike Turner that was recovered by Shaquille Richardson to give Toledo negative yardage on the three returns. Meantime, the Cats are No. 12 in kickoff coverage, allowing only 13.7 yards per return.

Big Play Juron

Wide receiver Juron Criner turned in a breakout season as a sophomore a year ago when he emerged as UA's big-play threat on the outside. His 2010 debut, which included an 11-catch, 187-yard performance, showed he has taken further steps to becoming on of the nation's most outstanding receivers. The 6-foot-4, 210-pounder is on the Biletnikoff preseason watch list and should be on that list as it narrows down throughout the season. Here are some quick hits on Juron Criner:

- Just one TD (11 currently) shy of breaking into UA's career top-10 for receiving TD's
- Led Pac-10 receivers with nine (9) receiving touchdowns in 2009
- Six of 11 (55 percent) career TD grabs have been 20+ yard plays
- 41 of 63 (65 percent) of career catches result in first down or TD
- 11-catch, 187-yard performance at Toledo 2010
- 12-catch, 152-yard effort against Stanford in 2009
- Career-high three (3) touchdowns vs. Oregon in 2009
- Led all UA receivers with a 12.9 yards per catch average in 2009
- As a sophomore, hauled in TD catches at Iowa, at Oregon State and at USC

Foles Making a Name for Himself

Arizona junior quarterback Nick Foles continues to show why he is one of the top quarterbacks in the nation. An honorable mention all-league pick as a first-year starter in 2009. This summer, he was one of four QBs (Jake Locker, Andrew Luck and Matt Barkley) selected by the Pac-10 office to represent the league in East Coast media days in New York and at ESPN headquarters in Bristol, Conn. Voted by teammates as a team captain, Foles kicked off his junior campaign in style with a record setting performance at Toledo and set what could set up to be a special junior campaign. Here are some quick hits on Nick Foles:

- Preseason watch list for Davey O'Brien and Manning awards
- Currently 154 yards shy of 3,000 career yards
- Just 422 yards shy of moving into UA's career top-10 passing yards
- No. 10 in UA history with 21 career passing TDs
- His 19 passing TDs in 2009 tied for fourth-most in a season at UA
- 63.41% completion percentage in 2009 No. 3 in UA history
- Career-high 416 yards passing vs. Stanford in 2009
- UA record for single game pass completion % for 30+ attempts (86.49% at Toledo, 2010)

Bug Right on Track

A year ago it took UA eight games before it had positive punt-return yardage -- when Bug Wright had his debut at the spot (3-115 vs. WSU). Bug's three returns for 47 yards in the opener gives UA a decent start and rates him 10th nationally at 15.7 yards per pop. He would have finished in the national top 10 at 17.5 yards per return in 2009 but did not have enough returns to qualify. (He had 12 for 210 yards in 11 games played, and needed 14 returns.)

Knocking It Down

The Wildcat defense has seven passes messed up -- one interception and six PBUs. Pretty nice total against 23 passes attempted, and half as many plays as those completed (14) in the Toledo game. Against a team that threw the ball six times last week (The Citadel), those figures ought to continue to be good for at least another week. Mid-year juco transfer linebacker Derek Earls had the interception and three passes defended last week. The three PBUs were the most for a Wildcat since cornerback Trevin Wade had three (plus an interception) at Iowa last year.

Four Bills Isn't That Often

Nick Foles (360) and Matt Scott combined for 413 passing yards at Toledo in the opener, to post the No. 10 single-game figure in school history, replacing a 407-yard effort by Jason Johnson (381) and Nic Costa against Northern Arizona in 2002. Foles threw for 415 yards against Stanford a year ago for his career high. The 360 vs. the Rockets was No. 2 nationally behind T.J. Yates' 412 markers through the air for North Carolina. In the Pac-10 QB jamboree, which might turn out to be a five- or six-man competition, here's how the first week of the year shook out in terms of passing yards:

Nick Foles, Arizona - 360
 Andrew Luck, Stanford - 316
 Jake Locker, Washington - 266
 Kevin Riley, California - 258
 Matt Barkley, USC - 257
 Steven Threet, ASU - 239

Four Squared

Arizona scored in all four quarters at Toledo for the first time in its last six games. The last time was against WSU in Tucson last Nov. 7, one of six times UA scored in each stanza last season. Needless to say, the Cats were pretty successful at 5-1 in the contests, averaging around 43 points per game.

Head Coach Mike Stoops

7th Season | 34-39 Overall | 1-1 Bowls

- Led Arizona to a second-place finish in the Pac-10 in 2009, its highest finish in 11 seasons.
- Returned Arizona to the national rankings in 2009, with the team ascending to No. 18 in November.
- Coached the Wildcats to back-to-back eight-victory seasons and bowl berths in 2008 and 2009.
- Helped lead the program's defense to consecutive years in the nation's Top 25 in total defense in 2008 and 2009.
- Arizona's victory over No. 20 Southern California in 2009 gave Stoops victories over a ranked team in each of his six seasons in Tucson.
- Helped Arizona record a sixth consecutive 50,000-plus per-game attendance figure, its best streak in the 30 years Arizona Stadium has been near its current capacity.
- Arizona has had 12 players selected in the NFL Draft the past four seasons after their development under Stoops' training systems.
- Stoops added 2007 Jim Thorpe Award winner Antoine Cason to his long list of national award winners. Cason was a consensus All-American and later first-round pick by the San Diego Chargers.

Figures on Starts

On offense Arizona started one redshirt freshman, four juniors, four seniors and two graduates. If you take away the RS freshman (tight end Jack Baucus) out of the double-tight formation used, it probably would have been another junior inside receiver or maybe a sophomore H-back. Pretty experienced unit with two first-time starters (Baucus and OG Jovon Hayes). On defense the Cats put a soph nickel back (Adam Hall) on the field at the start, to go with five seniors, a redshirt freshman (DT Sione Tuihalamaka) and four juniors. That group had six first-time starters -- Hall, Tuihalamaka, LBs Derek Earls and Paul Vassallo, and safeties Joseph Perkins and Anthony Wilcox. Another first-time starter was true freshman long snapper Chase Gorham.

Red Zone Misses

The Cats let one red zone opportunity at Toledo pass by at game's end, eschewing any attempt at scoring from the UT 6-yard line after recovering a fumbled punt with half a minute left. Another foray was spoiled when Nick Foles' pass from the 17-yard line was tipped by H-back Taimi Tutogi and intercepted by Diaunte Morrow late in the third quarter. UA stiffened, forced a punt and drove 66 yards for the score a few minutes later.

Welcome Matt

Backup quarterback Matt Scott played in a tough situation in the second quarter at Toledo, with Arizona starting a drive at its own 4-yard line following a great UT punt. It wasn't the best of circumstances. Keola Antolin lost three yards rushing, Nic Grigsby gained two yards rushing, and on third-and-11, Scott rushed 11 yards for an apparent first down only to be nullified by a holding penalty in the end zone -- and the automatic safety therein. It cost UA a shutout and cost Scott the 11 yards. Later, in the fourth quarter, he got another chance, this time moving the team 81 yards in 11 plays for its final score. Included in the drive were 5-for-7 passing (53 yards) by Scott including a two-yard toss to Antolin for the touchdown. The effort boosted his career pass completion percentage to .611 (55-for-90) and improved his career pass efficiency rating some 16 points to 121.26.

Sub-200

The Arizona defense limited Toledo to 183 total offense yards in the season opener, marking the sixth time in the last 27 games the Wildcats have kept an opponent below 200 yards of offense. Under Mike Stoops, The Cats have turned in a sub-200 yard defensive effort on nine occasions, including in each of the last three season openers. Here's a look at the nine efforts under the Stoops-led defenses:

- Toledo (2010) – 183 yards on 51 total plays.
- Central Michigan (2009) – 182 yards on 51 total plays.
- Washington St. (2009) – 185 yards on 42 total plays.
- Idaho (2008) – 112 yards on 52 total plays.
- UCLA (2008) – 196 yards on 59 total plays.
- Arizona St. (2008) – 162 yards on 54 total plays.
- Stanford (2006) – 52 yards on 32 total plays, the Cats' Pac-10 -game record.
- Stephen F. Austin (2006) – 196 yards on 50 total plays.
- Stanford (2005) – 195 yards on 58 plays.

Colin the Shots

UA center Colin Baxter returns for his final season in a Wildcat uniform and will undoubtedly be calling the shots on the offensive line. He has started 38-consecutive games along UA's line, providing stability at a position of need. In 2008, he was slid from guard to center mid-year after center Blake Kerley went down with a season-ending injury. Since, Baxter hasn't look back. He's a featured spokesman for the team, offering unique perspective acquired from his time in the trenches and his tireless work with the program on and off the field. He was named a team captain prior to the season for the second straight year and will make a final push for national honors at his position. An All-Pac-10 selection a year ago, Baxter is on the Outland Trophy and Rimington Award watch lists entering the season.

Old Man on the Block

Arizona graduate offensive tackle Adam Grant, who moves to the left side this year after a couple of years on the right, is an NCAA-approved sixth-year player thanks to some earlier medical problems that caused him to miss nine games as a sophomore (knee) and his redshirt freshman year in 2006 (knee). He also missed six games with a hand injury in 2008. Grant's tenacity and physical situation are at all-time highs. The 24-year-old religious studies student earned his degree two Mays ago. He's a 19-game starter in 21 overall appearances and one of the team's spokesmen on a variety of topics, notably perseverance. He initially was recruited as a tight end (redshirted 2005 in that role) but his big frame (now 6-foot-8, 325) was evident, and his future was a few feet closer to the ball from the onset of his career.

Visiting the ZonaZoo?

The Wildcats have developed quite a home field advantage playing in Arizona Stadium in front of one of the largest and most spirited student sections in the country - the ZonaZoo - and a loyal fan base that has turned out in record numbers during the Mike Stoops era.

- UA has won 12 of its last 15 home games
- Only losses to No. 6 USC and No. 22 Oregon State in 2008, and No. 11 Oregon in 2009
- The three losses have come by a total of 12 points (4 ppg average)
- UA has won its 12 games by an average of 22.7 ppg
- UA has just one single-digit victory in the span (2009 vs. Stanford)
- UA's 5-1 record in 2009 was its best home record since it went 5-1 three straight years from '96-98
- UA has averaged 50,000+ fans per game for six straight seasons, the best stretch in school history
- UA has averaged 52,780 fans per game in Mike Stoops' six seasons, with a 21-18 record
- A total of 2,058,412 fans have watched Stoops' teams at Arizona Stadium
- The ZonaZoo seats over 10,000 first-come, first-served patrons from endzone-to-endzone and has a membership well over 12,000 and growing, which accounts for one-third of UA's enrollment.

Cats in the Pac

Arizona's 6-3 mark in the Pac-10 in 2010 was its best since 1998 and is the third six-win Pac-10 season in program history. The record gave the Wildcats 14 victories in their last 22 conference games, dating to the last four games of the 2007 season. That 14-8 record (0.636 winning percentage) is impressive by itself, but even in the Wildcats' eight losses, they have been just a few plays away from winning each game. UA has lost five of the eight games by three points or less and by a total of 37 points (average of 4.6 per game).

Late Season Success

Mike Stoops' Wildcats have enjoyed a nice run of success in the months of November and December since his arrival in 2004 despite back-to-back losses at Cal and against Oregon. A career record of 33-39 includes a 14-10 mark in the final two months of the season. Over the last three seasons, Arizona is 11-7 in such late-season games. But, perhaps most impressive, the Wildcats are 7-4 against ranked teams in November/December showdowns, which includes last year's Las Vegas Bowl win over BYU last December. Last year, the Cats entered November with a national ranking of their own, but dropped from the polls after a loss at California. A victory at No. 20 USC vaulted the Cats back into the polls at the end of the regular season, but a bowl loss to No. 20 Nebraska again dropped the Cats from the polls.

Golden Worth His Weight in Gold

Junior defensive back Robert Golden will be one of the expected leaders of the Wildcat defense after starting 13 games a season ago at safety. The one difference this season is that the 5-11, 190-pounder will likely line up at cornerback most of the time this season. A natural corner, Golden shifted to safety last year as Devin Ross returned as a starter and the emergence of Trevin Wade brought some welcomed depth. The UA continues to show solid depth, but this time around it's the young and talented safeties in the program that will allow Golden to move back to the island. You will see him line up inside at nickel and safety spots in certain defensive packages, but the second-year starter is eager to show his skills at corner once again.

IN"T" Wade

Cornerback Trevin Wade is in his junior season with nine career interceptions in just 14 career games started. He snared five interceptions and broke up 14 passes a year ago to lead the Wildcats and emerge as one of the Pac-10's premier corner backs. He enters his junior season with potential to move into some lofty career charts by season's end should he remain healthy and productive. An All-League pick a year by coaches, Wade enters 2010 on several preseason watch lists, including consideration for the Jim Thorpe Award and Bronko Nagurski Award. He is one of four returning starters and is expected to be a top playmaker for the Wildcats.

Elmore Looking for More

Defensive end Ricky Elmore turned in a breakout junior season as he has emerged as the Pac-10's sack leader through 12 regular season games in 2009. Elmore tallied a career-high 10.5 sacks in much-needed fashion as classmate Brooks Reed struggled through the early-middle portion of the schedule with an ankle injury. Reed returned last year as one of the more heralded ends in the league, but Elmore more than filled in on the opposite side. Elmore's 10.5 sacks were the most for a Wildcat in a decade, surpassing Joe Tafoya's 10.0 set back in 1999. The next best total was 11.5 by Joe Salave'a in 1997. Then it's Tedy Bruschi's 14.5 and 19.0 totals in the 1995 and 1993 seasons, respectively.

Game of Possession

While not always the case, maintaining possession of the football is a sign that one's offense is moving the ball and its defense is doing a sound job controlling the opposing offense. That has usually been the case for the Wildcats, although some quirky games (such as a 23:32 edge in possession at Oregon in 2008) skew TOP from being a perfect stat. Even so, Arizona is 21-7 since the start of 2006 when it has a positive margin in time of possession and struggles to just a 7-16 mark when its opponents keeps the ball longer. For games in which the opponent controls the ball four or more minutes longer than the Cats yields a 3-13 record for the Cardinal and Navy. When the tables are turned and UA has the four-plus minutes of possession, the Cats are 16-6.

3rd Down Improvement

In 2009, the Wildcats saw their third down conversion percentage drop from 46.3 percent in 2008 to 41.4 percent. First-year starting quarterbacks and an injury-plagued backfield are plausible explanations. Undoubtedly, the Cats would like to see that number improve this coming year and that was the case in the season opener with an 8-for-11 effort. Interestingly, the consecutive 40-plus percent conversion rates the last two seasons are the first two for UA teams since 1998-99, when the teams were both above 42 percent. Even more positive for the Wildcats, their defense has been solid the last two years in defending in third down situations. Opponents have been held to an average of 34.7 percent conversions the last two seasons after converting an all-to-high 43.2 percent against UA's defense in 2007.

Fast Starts

Since the start of the 2008 season, the Wildcats have developed a knack for fast starts to games and halves. In 2009, the Wildcats outscored their opponents 105-58 in the first quarter of games and 77-56 in the third quarter. Combined with the 2008 season and the first game of 2010, those numbers are even more impressive. UA has outscored opponents 204-120 in the first quarter of its last 27 games, and 212-110 in the third quarter of those games. What does it mean? Either the Wildcats thrive playing fully rested or perhaps game plans and coaching adjustments are spot-on and the players are executing those plans.

Notes on Sacks

Arizona registered 34 sacks in 2009, led by DE Ricky Elmore who notched a Pac-10-leading 10.5 sacks during the regular season. The defense ranked No. 22 in the NCAA and No. 3 in the Pac-10 on the year with a 2.62 sacks per game. UA's season total was its most in nearly a decade, falling just short of the 36 posted by the 2001 club. Of note, the Wildcats turned in at least three sacks in a game seven times last season (5-2 record), the most three-sack games for a UA squad since 2000 when it had eight. In its last 50 games, Arizona has recorded three or more sacks in a game 20 times with a 14-6 record.

Not to Be Offensive

Over the course of the last 38 games, Arizona has scored 13 non-offensive touchdowns (once every 2.85 games). In 2007 and 2008, the Wildcats scored on two punt returns and two interception returns in each season. In 2009, Travis Cobb scored on a kickoff return (95 yards), Bug Wright returned a punt to the house (86 yards), Orlando Vargas blocked a punt and returned it for a score (23 yards), and defensive backs Trevin Wade (38 yards) and Robert Golden (79 yards) had pick-six's. The Cats hope more are in store in all phases of the game in 2010.

30 Is (Usually) The Magic Number

The Cats' loss to Oregon in double overtime and their 36-33 loss to Washington on Oct. 10 was a rare one. Since joining the Pac-10 in 1978, the Wildcats have played 111 games in which they have scored 30 or more points. Their record in those games? An astounding 100-11-1. That record included a streak of 18 consecutive victories prior to the Oregon game in 2008 (55-45 loss), and UA is now 21-3 under Mike Stoops. Arizona is 1-0 in such games this season.

If Not 30, Try 40

If Arizona's winning percentage since 1978 when scoring 30 or more points isn't enough, then try out a 40+ point stat. In its entire history of football, Arizona is 111-5 when scoring 40 or more points in a game. Arizona was 4-0 in such games – all at home – in an eight-win 2008 season. Previously, the last time UA reached the mark four times in one season was in 1954, when it did so six times. In 2009, the Wildcats reached 40 points three times with a 2-1 record in those games. The loss? A 44-41 double overtime victory by Oregon. Amazingly, the Ducks also dropped the Cats the year prior, 55-45, in Eugene, accounting for two of the five all-time losses. UA is 1-0 in 2010 when scoring 40 points.

Next Week

Arizona will host a top-10 Iowa squad from the Big 10 in a nationally-televised inter-conference showdown at Arizona Stadium on Saturday, Sept. 18. The Cats and Hawkeyes will kickoff at 7:30 p.m. on ESPN in a game that is sure to be a sell-out.

Game 1: Arizona 41, Toledo 2

Sept. 3, 2010 | Toledo, Ohio (Glass Bowl) | Attendance: 25,907

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) -Nick Foles threw for 360 yards and accounted for three touchdowns to help Arizona pound Toledo 41-2 on Friday night.

Foles tossed two TD passes and ran for another score as the Wildcats recorded their first road victory outside the Pac-10 in nine seasons. Nic Grigsby added two touchdown runs.

Foles completed 32 of 37 passes with an interception that occurred when a ball went off the hands of running back Taimi Tutogi and bounced to Toledo defensive back Diauntae Morrow.

He showed a nice touch on his first touchdown throw, lofting a 9-yard pass over a defender and into the hands of tight end David Douglas, who got one foot down in the back of end zone with 8:40 left in the first quarter.

Foles completed five passes for 58 yards on the opening drive, but the Wildcats didn't do much after that until late in the first half.

Grigsby, who struggled with a shoulder injury last season, scored on a nifty 36-yard run, cutting across the middle and outracing two Rockets to corner of the end zone, capping a nine-play, 91-yard drive and giving Arizona a 14-2 lead.

One play later, Derek Earls picked off Austin Dantin's pass over the middle to get the ball back for the Wildcats. Foles scored on a 1-yard run with just 17 seconds left in the half, making it 21-2.

Arizona's speedy bunch of receivers seemed to be open on nearly play. Juron Criner led the way, finishing with 11 catches for 187 yards and a touchdown.

Arizona's young defense, with seven new starters, including all three linebackers, did a nice job limiting the Rockets to 80 yards rushing, including just 16 yards in the first half.

It was quite an improvement for a defense that coach Mike Stoops said looked terrible in a team scrimmage two weeks ago.

Toledo had the top offense in the Mid-American Conference a year ago, but it did little right against the Wildcats. Dantin was 14-of-23 passing for 103 yards.

Toledo's only score of the night came when Arizona lineman Conan Amituanai was called for holding in the end zone, giving the Rockets the safety.

Arizona hadn't ventured this far for opener since going to Penn State in 1999. It also was the first time a Pac-10 team has played at a Mid-American Conference stadium.

QUOTES

Arizona Head Coach Mike Stoops

"I'm really proud of our kids. We made a lot of mistakes, but we played hard and that's the most important thing to me. We shut (their offense) out and that was really important for our defense."

"Our kids really played well on defense. Linebacker Paul Vassallo did some good things tonight. Tonight was a really good learning experience. There is going to be a lot of corrections, but our effort was important to me."
