2010 Arizona Football Honors Candidates

Colin Baxter, Center, Senior – 6-4, 295

Rimington Trophy candidate last two years... Second-team All-Pac-10 in 2009... The leader of a unit that gave up only 13 sacks last year and none in six different games... Started his career as redshirt freshman starting guard in 2007... 37 consecutive starts... Team co-captain as junior and probable for election in 2010... Regional development major...

Nic Grigsby, Running back, Senior – 5-11, 195

A healthy Grigsby would have worked toward a second consecutive 1,000-yard season in 2010 but was limited for many games instead of the consistent home-run threat he'd been (such as a 94-yard run in 2009)... Still finished eighth in the league in rushing (79-567) in basically five games, with a phenomenal 7.2 yards per carry... Second-team All-Pac-10 in 2008... Enters senior year with 2,324 career yards on 454 carries, a career 5.1 ypc mark... 10 career 100-yard games in 28 starts... Family studies major...

Trevin Wade, Cornerback, Junior – 5-11, 185

Expected to anchor UA's secondary in 2010 in his second year as starter... Among nation's top 30 in passes defended (14), with five interceptions in 2009... Has nine career interceptions, just shy of UA's all-time chart... Second-team All-Pacific-10 Conference honors... Could challenge the UA career record of 21 interceptions by College Football Hall of Famer Chuck Cecil... Retail and consumer studies major...

Adam Grant, Offensive Tackle, Graduate – 6-7, 325

Grant will likely switch to left tackle in his final year... Was granted a retroactive medical hardship year from 2007... Second-team All-Pac-10 honors... He was healthy in 2009 and it showed in some hugely consistent play as part of a 400 yards per game offense that allowed only 13 sacks... 18-game starter after earlier hand and knee injuries slowed his start... Was listed at tight end when he arrived... Religious studies graduate...

Ricky Elmore, Defensive End, Senior – 6-5, 265

Second in the league with 10.5 sacks in 2009... Honorable mention All-Pac-10 honors... Earned his way on to mid-year Hendricks Award list... 22 career starts including the last 16 consecutive... He and Brooks Reed should give Arizona a powerful tandem on the edge in their senior campaigns... Interdisciplinary studies major...

Brooks Reed, Defensive End, Senior

A healthy Reed will help UA in 2010... Missed three games and two starts after knee injury in third game in 2009... Entered year on Hendricks Award and Lombardi Award watch lists after solid soph campaign of 8.5 sacks... 10.5 career sacks and capable of that many in half a year... He and fellow end Ricky Elmore will be fifth-year seniors on the edge in 2010... Geography major...

Juron Criner, Receiver, Junior – 6-4, 215

In a spread-it-around system Criner caught his share (45-582) in 2009, scoring once every five catches to check in as the Cats' big-play touchdown man... His nine scores are tied for No. 5 on Arizona's single-season receiving TDs chart... Caught 12 balls for 152 yards to help key victory over Stanford... Grabbed three scoring TDs against Oregon in double-overtime loss... Played as a true freshman in 2008...

Nick Foles, Quarterback, Junior – 6-5, 235

Foles came on to start UA's final 10 games and put up some credible numbers with 2,486 yards passing, 19 touchdowns and nine interceptions... Honorable mention All-conference (along with Jake Locker and Andrew Luck), one of five circuit QBs to get votes... Has the complete arsenal of throws and is a superb student of the game in terms of preparation and reaction... His development under noted QB mentor Frank Scelfo in his second year of starting is an anticipated strength...

OTHERS TO WATCH... Junior guard Vaughn Dotsy is a two-year regular who should be a dominant player in the middle in his final two seasons... Junior receiver Bug Wright, whose all-purpose skills (23 receptions, 17.5 yards per punt return, 29.8 per KOR) will be an open-field key in 2010... Junior placekicker Alex Zendejas, a 77% field goal kicker in his first year on the job and Pac-10 player of the week after ASU game winner... Senior receiver Delashaun Dean (131 career receptions), No. 8 on UA's all-time receptions chart... Junior strong safety Robert Golden, who should step up as a leader with the departure of FS Cam Nelson... Junior running back Keola Antolin, the Cats' leading rusher in 2009 with 637 yards in shared time (5.6 ypc)... Senior punter Keenyn Crier, first-team All-Pac-10 as a freshman, carries a 42.9 individual average and has the ability to contend for the Ray Guy Award... Among newcomers, mid-year juco linebackers Derek Earls and Paul Vassallo are penciled in as starters, while redshirt junior DT Jonathan Hollins has earned some raves from the strength staff...

2010 Arizona Football Notes

Outlook in Brief: Arizona recorded back-to-back eight-victory seasons and put itself in late November contention for the Pac-10 title a year ago. No one connected with the program expects less. The offense returns nearly intact and while replacing headliners on defense will be a key, recruiting and player development has been going well throughout Mike Stoops' six-year tenure and the bodies are there. The club will have a junior quarterback capable of contending for high individual honors, an experienced offensive line, a proven system, some all-league caliber defensive ends, depth on the defensive line and some game-breaking talent on both sides.

- It's time to notice that Mike Stoops has given Arizona a football program and not just a year-to-year thing. A defining support for that claim is that when a starter graduates, someone else already is steeped in the culture and ready to go, with little or no drop-off. Stoops has sent more than a dozen players to the NFL in the past three years and other people in the program of equal ability have stepped forward to fill their shoes. The Cats have beaten a ranked team in each of his six years in Tucson. Wags may pick the Wildcats for the middle of the pack or worse, but there's no legitimate reason to do so. Back-to-back upper-division finishes should make those observations obsolete. Five Pac-10 teams have won eight or more games in each of the last two seasons and Arizona is one of them. Two Pac-10 teams have won nine or more games in each of the past three years, and Arizona beat one of them and lost in double overtime to the other in 2009. Arizona will compete for the prizes in 2010.
- Stoops sent two assistants into other situations of note – offensive coordinator Sonny Dykes leaving to become head coach at Louisiana Tech and defensive coordinator Mark Stoops, his brother, moving to take the same role at ACC power Florida State. Both moves have prompted wider collaboration in Arizona's coaching staff, with linebackers coach Tim Kish and new secondary coach Greg Brown becoming co-defensive coordinators, while line coach Bill Bedenbaugh and running backs/tight ends coach Seth Littrell were named co-offensive coordinators. Meantime, Stoops brought in noted QB mentor Frank Scelfo from the coordinator's job at Louisiana Tech to become Arizona's quarterbacks coach. Bedenbaugh and Littrell (and Scelfo) have a broad background in the spread offense while Kish has been a mainstay throughout Stoops' tenure in Tucson. Brown came from Colorado and has a solid background in the NFL, with Thorpe Award winners, etc. The chemistry in the back office is going to be good (not that it wasn't).
- What will Scelfo mean to Arizona's quarterback situation? Junior Nick Foles wrested the job from junior Matt Scott a year ago and didn't look back, earning honorable mention All-Pac-10 honors. Each showed some good things, with Foles more suited to the passing game and Scott an adept runner. Scott was 2-1 as the starter, Foles 6-4. It's Foles' job on the surface, but will the new brain trust change the way they're used? Is their 'Wildcat' stuff with Scott in the offing? Foles has shown he can shoulder a game plan and pick his spots. If he can put together a season from start to finish all kinds of things are possible. Scelfo tutored four guys at Tulane who played in the NFL so he knows his stuff.
- Offensively the Wildcats return all starters except left tackle Mike Diaz. Factoring in the spread system's extra inside receivers, the team returns five players who started at receiver, three who started at running back, QB Foles, the tight end and four offensive line starters. The spring choice for the vacant spot is Phil Garcia, who started a pair of games at LT in 2009. UA graduated its H-back, Chris Gronkowski, but returns sophomore Taimi Tutogi, who saw considerable action as a true freshman. Several young linemen should be ready as reserves, two talented running backs were redshirted as true freshmen and there's some immediate talent coming in the receiving corps. A year ago line coach Bill Bedenbaugh plugged in three new starters across the front – RG Vaughn Dotsy, LG Herman Hall and RT Adam Grant – to go with center Colin Baxter and LT Mike Diaz, who had started at LG in 2008. This year he'll be plugging in one guy to replace Diaz – Grant will switch sides.
- If Arizona wants to go for more power offense, it can. The club rushed for 2,000 yards and 19 scores, and passed for 3,000 yards and 20 scores. UA has the personnel to go either way. One area where this dynamic will be of concern is red zone scoring, wherein the Cats were sub-par in 2009 with only 27 touchdowns in 54 trips inside the 20-yard line. Figuring out a way to cash in on these opportunities will be a focus.
- One reason RZ success might have been affected was the loss of All-American TE Rob Gronkowski, who missed his junior year in 2009 with a back injury (and then took his talents to the NFL this spring). What Arizona was able to accomplish, having to adjust on the fly to his loss just a week before the 2009 season began, bodes well for the aforementioned depth and sustainability that Stoops has built. Another blow was a shoulder problem that made top RB Nic Grigsby more of a role player than the home-run threat he was as a full-load player. He played half the season at less than 100 percent. In 2010 he should become Arizona's sixth 3,000-yard career rusher and push for a spot in the top three.
- Recruiting by Stoops and staff has gone to another level, more so from the inside rather than the stars-assigning view. This is not a knock on can't-miss prospects or the non-coaching people in the cottage industries who take credit for identifying them, but that kind of evaluation only lasts until a couple of days after national signing day. Arizona gets a good share of the BCS prospects it identifies, and then the staff goes to work on player development and coaching. The hyperbole that swirls around college recruiting is superfluous when it comes to finding kids who can play in your system. For every Eben Britton or Rob Gronkowski there's a handful of Antoine Casons and Mike Thomases who can make a difference. The Wildcat staff is doing a good job of finding the players it wants.

- The Cats have completed the last two seasons rated in the FBS top 25 in total defense, with four new starters the second time around. In 2010 it will take two new guys up front, three linebackers and two men in the secondary, a substantial task. Hence some recruiting in the juco ranks to bring in accomplished linebackers in Derek Earls and Paul Vassallo to go with returning sophomores Jake Fischer and R.J. Young, senior C.J.Parish, and redshirt freshmen Tervor Erno and Cordarius Golston. Up front rotation regulars Dominique Austin and Lolomana Mikaele and redshirts Jonathan Hollins, Justin Washington and Sione Tuihalamaka will plug in nicely under the tutelage of interior coach Mike Tuiasosopo. In the secondary, junior corner Trevin Wade and junior safety Robert Golden will return and help bring along former jucos in seniors Marcus Benjamin and Lyle Brown at the corners, while senior Joe Perkins and sophomore Adam Hall will easily step up to give UA solid emphasis at free safety. Redshirt freshmen Derrick Rainey (safety) and DeWayne Peace (corner) also figure to compete for time and populate special teams along with senior corner Mike Turner. Incoming freshmen Marquis Flowers might be good enough to get a view at safety or special teams as did Hall in 2009. The expected collaboration between co-coordinators in LBs coach Tim Kish and secondary coach Greg Brown should really help fuse the 2010 second and third levels.
 - Senior defensive ends Brooks Reed and Rickly Elmore give Arizona a superb pair of outside physical guys and edge rushers. Elmore was second in the league in sacks (10.5) while Reed fought through a knee injury to return to top form toward the end of the year after turning in a similar performance as a sophomore. Senior D'Aundre Reed has started some at DE, too, while junior Apaiaata Tuihalamaka is expected to continue his progress and contend as well for ends coach Jeff Hammerschmidt. UA recruited freshmen ends and tackles – six in all – to keep the future promising along the defensive front's four positions.
 - Then sophomore quarterback Nick Foles started hot, winning four of his first five starts beginning in week 4 in 2009, and then hit a wall at California and against Oregon. He played okay in victory at Arizona State and was sharper than the counterpart in helping drive for the winning score at USC. The Holiday Bowl was a different story, with inconsistency and lackluster play by the entire squad spelling doom. His maturity and consistency will be a key to UA's fortunes in 2010. A 415-yard, 40-for-51 (78%) outing with three TDs in a shootout against Stanford showed some top-end luster in his game. in a shootout. He also topped the 300-yard mark in losses against Washington and Oregon. The Oregon State game was among his best and better suited to UA's balance with 25 completions in 34 attempts for 254 yards and three scores. His 19 TD passes – one in all but the ASU and bowl games among his 12 played – stack up at No. 4 in Arizona single-season passing. In a full year of starts he could easily challenge Willie Tuitama's record of 28 in 2007. Meantime, Matt Scott, the starter in the first three games, returns. He's capable and also chipped in 170 rushing yards in his three starts and 150 more in spot duty thereafter. He and junior Bryson Beirne make the situation under center pretty good.
 - Expect Arizona to have playmakers on special teams. Receivers Bug Wright (punt returns) and Travis Cobb (KOR) each shined. Cobb took one back 95 yards for a score against Washington State and averaged 25.4 yards per attempt, 36th nationally. Wright was a few attempts shy of hitting the top five with his 17.5-yard punt return average, sparked by an 86-yard jaunt for a score in the same game. Bug didn't even get his first return until the eighth game of the year. On the other side the Wildcats held opponents to 17 yards per game on punt returns and 90 per game on kickoff returns, winning parts of the field-position battle. Punter Keenyn Crier, the all-conference first-team pick as a redshirt freshman, needs to get back to that level of play. He's a 42-yard career kicker who suffered some inconsistency in 2009. He had 11 kicks of 50-plus, but also had seven touchbacks to help give UA a net punting figure of 35.1, No. 72 in the FBS. In other areas, UA special teams have been conservative in the Stoops era, opting to set up returns rather than go after opposing kickers. The Cats did block a punt and return it for a touchdown (at ASU) and replacing the guy who did it, one-time walk-on Orlando Vargas, will be a focus. He had 14 special teams tackles in 2009. Mike Turner and Robert Golden had 10 apiece and they're back.
 - Playmakers on offense who should shine in 2010 include running backs Nic Grigsby and Keola Antolin; and receivers Juron Criner, Delashaun Dean, David Douglas, Bug Wright and David Roberts. Grigsby and Antolin combined for 1,344 yards at 6.9 yards per carry, while then freshman Greg Nwoko added 273 yards in tougher going (3.6). Redshirt freshman Kylan Butler and Daniel Jenkins join this group to give UA a fine group of backs. Criner's the leading returning receiver with 45 for 582 yards and team-high nine scores. Roberts (43), Dean (42), Douglas (31) and Wright (23) also were active. Senior tight end A.J. Simmons took over for the injured Gronkowski and led the squad with 13.2 yards per catch (10 grabs). Juco speedster Travis Cobb, who entered at mid-term last year, and this year's version, Dexter Ransom, both of Blinn College, should help add to the dynamism on the outside. Roberts (inside) and Criner (outside) each had 12-catch games in 2009. Sophomore H-back Taimi Tutogi played as a true freshman and could help make that position more productive in his second season.
 - The Cats got kicked around in the Pacific Life Holiday Bowl, dropping a 33-0 decision to No. 20 Nebraska. It cost the program a spot in the final rankings and cost the coaching staff eight months of feeling better about things (as it had the previous year following the Las Vegas Bowl). But the extra month of work and the slap in the face will end up being positive influences on the growth of the program. Nothing comes easily and the Wildcats re-learned that one with the blanking from the Huskers.

Arizona Coach Mike Stoops

*Mike Stoops has led Arizona to back-to-back eight-victory seasons and bowl berths for the first time since 1998-99.

*Mike Stoops' six-year tenure in the Pac-10 is third-longest behind Mike Riley's nine years at OSU and Jeff Tedford's seven-year reign at California. He has the second-best conference record (15-12) among those three in the past three years.

*Stoops was a semifinalist for the George Munger Award in 2009, as college coach of the year.

*The Wildcats have beaten ranked teams each of Stoops' six seasons in Tucson including an unbeaten squad in 2005, the potential No. 1 club (if it had won) in 2007 and at USC in a bowl-positioning contest last year.

*Stoops has coached in 16 bowl games and competed in four others as a player.

*Stoops' coaching emphasis has led Arizona to consecutive top-25 rankings in NCAA FBS-Division total defense in 2008 and 2009.

*Arizona had 10 players selected in the 2007-09 NFL Drafts after their development under Stoops' training systems. Free-agent running back Mike Bell of the New Orleans Saints was among others who made it the tough way to the next level, and garnered a Super Bowl Championship ring for the effort.

*Stoops' office is adorned with the Saguaro Trophy, the emblematic prize for his back-to-back wins in the Territorial Cup Game against ASU, the NCAA's oldest sanctioned trophy game.

*Stoops plays quality schedules. Along with the Pacific-10 Conference full round-robin schedule of nine games, Arizona has faced Utah, Wisconsin, Purdue, BYU, LSU, Central Michigan and Iowa in non-conference action over the span of his tenure. Arizona had the NCAA's seventh toughest FBS schedule rated on opposing team records in 2009.

*Under Stoops, Arizona's recruiting classes have consistently developed Pac-10 players of note, and the staff took the institution's reach into nine states in 2010 including a haul of five top Arizona preps.

*Stoops returned Arizona to the national rankings after an eight-year hiatus for the school, reaching a high of No. 18 in the AP poll on Nov. 8, 2009. The Cats were in the polls four periods during the season.

*Arizona has had 15 players earn Pac-10 All-Academic honors in Stoops' six years, the same total as in the preceding 11 years from 1993 to 2003. Two of his charges were named to the National Football Foundation Hampshire Honor Society, one earned the Pac-10's first Football Scholar-Athlete of the Year Award, another was an NFF Southern Arizona Chapter scholar-athlete award winner and another earned a National Academic Momentum Award a year ago.
